In the space race J.F.K. showed great courage and persistence. Even when he was failing and falling behind he would not admit defeat. Even though the odds were not in his favor he kept on trying and trying and he started to pull through. Eventually his persistence paid off and America won the space race.

The space race was a competition between Russia and the U.S. Both sides were trying to do things like send people into space to sort of have dominance over it a understanding of space. J.F.K. said that people would go to the moon by the end

Of the decade and they did in 1969 after J.F.K. was killed. When J.F.K. was president he wouldn't give up on anything. He knew he was behind but he would not betray what his father always said which was to always be first so he brain stormed and thought that going to the moon would win the space race. Even though Russia had already sent the first man into space, the first dog into space, And the first satellite into space. And most of the American pollitical leaders were worried especelly J.F.K. But the Americans pulled through Even after J.F.K. was gone.

J.F.K. taught me that nomatter what the odds are you should keep trying and probably you'll get something good out of it.

He also taught me that if you keep trying and dont give up you'll almost always pull through.

J.F.K. and I are alike in that we both worry a lot at times but we both always find a way past our worries so we can think clearly and get rid of them all together.
