Small Group Presentation Guidelines

War in the Pacific National Historical Park

National Park Service
U.S. Department of the Interior

As a group each member will contribute to three components: written report, oral presentation, visual creation to increase audience understanding.

Written report:

Identify a (pretend) Chamorro member of the Guam community who would have lived here between 1941 and 1944

Tell whether it is a boy or girl, man or woman, give approximate age.

Tell where they lived on Guam.

Tell of a few of their experiences like going to work or to school, having to work for the Japanese, having to hide from the Japanese, things they did like cooking, caring for animals, fishing, games they played, songs they sang, the day they were liberated by the Marines, or other activities and experiences

Oral presentation:

Practice telling the story until you have a smooth and interesting delivery

Visual:

Create a poster, diorama, 3-D representation of a place or article that would have been Important to character who is the focus of your presentation

Some resources for this can be:

Youtube interviews of survivors who describe their experiences during 1941-1944

A good internet resource is found at guampedia.org Look for the WWII/Japanese Era entry http://guampedia.com/category/historic-eras-of-guam/wwiijapanese-era/

There are special scrapbooks at the National Park Museum that also give you information about the Chamorros who lived on Guam
