COPYRIGHT AND RESTRICTIONS

The copyright law of the United States (Title 17, United States Code) governs the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted materials. The various state privacy acts govern the use of materials that document private individuals, groups, and corporations.

Under certain conditions specified in the law, libraries and archives are authorized to furnish a reproduction if the document does not infringe the privacy rights of an individual, group, or corporation. These specified conditions of authorized use include:

- non-commercial and non-profit study, scholarship, or research, or teaching
- criticism, commentary, or news reporting
- as a NPS preservation or security copy
- as a research copy for deposit in another institution

If a user later uses a copy or reproduction for purposes in excess of "fair use," the user may be personally liable for copyright, privacy, or publicity infringement. This institution's permission to obtain a photographic, xerographic, digital, or other copy of a document doesn't indicate permission to publish, exhibit, perform, reproduce, sell, distribute, or prepare derivative works from this document without first obtaining permission from the copyright holder and from any private individual, group, or corporation shown or otherwise recorded.

Permission to publish, exhibit, perform, reproduce, prepare derivative works from, sell, or otherwise distribute the item must be obtained by the user separately in writing from the holder of the original copyright (or if the creator is dead from his/her heirs) as well as from any individual(s), groups, or corporations whose name, image, recorded words, or private information (e.g., employment information) may be reproduced in the source material. The holder of the original copyright isn't necessarily the National Park Service. The National Park Service is not legally liable for copyright, privacy, or publicity infringement when materials are wrongfully used after being provided to researchers for "fair use."

This institution reserves the right to refuse to accept a copying order if fulfillment of the order is judged in violation of copyright or federal or state privacy or publicity law.

HISTORY

In August 1947, a heavy rainstorm created a new channel that carried water directly into Chetro Ketl, flooding several lower rooms, weakening wall bases, and collapsing a major section of the back wall. The Ruin Stabilization Unit crew, under the direction of R. Gordon Vivian, began emergency work to prevent further wall collapse. In November 1947, work began in Room 93. It was decided to excavate the upper room to relieve the weight on the lower room walls. In the dry layer about 10 inches above the floor, an assemblage of approximately 200 artifacts, mostly fragments of carved and painted wood, were uncovered. Gordon Vivian requested assistance from his son, Gwinn Vivian, in excavating this collection. The artifacts are in the park's museum collection (Accession 10).

In 1958, Gordon Vivian, based at the NPS Southwestern Archeological Center (SWAC), and with the assistance of Dulce Dodgen, began work on a descriptive report. Gordon Vivian died in 1966, before the report was completed. NPS archaeologists Jon and Karen Young began work on the collection and the report, but that work was halted when SWAC was moved to Tucson in 1971. In 1972, the NPS contracted with the Arizona State Museum (R. Gwinn Vivian, principal investigator) for the completion of the report. In 1972, C. Randall Morrison organized data and worked on the comparative sections of the report. Gayle Hartman was employed in 1974 to edit the manuscript, and assist in the final research and writing phases.
