

Teacher-Ranger-Teacher Program

Become a National Park Ranger this summer!

Put on the uniform, receive top-notch training, and work for the National Park Service.

June 13 – August 8, 2012

Teacher

Accredited teachers have the opportunity to work as a “real” park ranger for Everglades, Dry Tortugas, or Biscayne National Parks. Successful candidates will receive training, a $300/week stipend, and a National Park Service uniform. This is an eight-week commitment, at 40 hours per week. Total stipend is $2,400, minus benefits, paid through the school district in one lump sum at the end of the summer. Some weekend work may be required.

Ranger

As a National Park Ranger, you will have the opportunity to work on various projects and activities, including: interacting with park visitors, leading guided walks, conducting talks and Junior Ranger activities, staffing a visitor center, assisting fire management, and writing and reviewing environmental education curriculum.

Teacher

When you return to your classroom, you will share your first-hand experiences and newly acquired resources and knowledge. During National Park Week in April, you are expected to present programs in uniform to your class and/or the entire school as a representative of the National Park Service.

Eligibility

Before applying, be sure that you meet these basic requirements:

- You are a state-accredited teacher employed by Miami-Dade County Public Schools.
- You are available to work this summer for 8 weeks, 40 hours/week.
- You have the support of your administrator to conduct in-school programs during National Park Week in April 2013.
- You understand that you will be working in a hot and humid environment with high insect populations.
- You are a motivated and flexible individual who is eager to learn more about South Florida’s National Parks,

How to Apply
