Body Recovered Below the Rim

Grand Canyon, Ariz. – At approximately noon this afternoon a Wildlife Biologist from the Peregrine Fund, working in the park, noticed heavy condor activity concentrated in one area. After hiking to a vantage point, the biologist was able to see a body about 300 feet below the rim of the canyon at Trail View Overlook on the West Rim Drive. Trail View Overlook is about one mile west of the Hermit's Rest Road Interchange in the village at the South Rim of Grand Canyon National Park.

After scouting the area from the rim, Park Rangers were able to repel down to the body, where it was rigged and flown to the South Rim Heli-base via long line.

Park Rangers had been searching the area for 29-year-old Eric Stanley, a Grand Canyon resident that went missing late Friday evening, March 14. The identity of the body recovered is not known at this time. The body was turned over to the Coconino County Medical Examiner's Office for identification. An investigation will be conducted by the National Park.
