COPYRIGHT AND RESTRICTIONS

The copyright law of the United States (Title 17, United States Code) governs the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted materials. The various state privacy acts govern the use of materials that document private individuals, groups, and corporations.

Under certain conditions specified in the law, libraries and archives are authorized to furnish a reproduction if the document does not infringe the privacy rights of an individual, group, or corporation. These specified conditions of authorized use include:

- non-commercial and non-profit study, scholarship, or research, or teaching
- criticism, commentary, or news reporting
- as a NPS preservation or security copy
- as a research copy for deposit in another institution

If a user later uses a copy or reproduction for purposes in excess of "fair use," the user may be personally liable for copyright, privacy, or publicity infringement. This institution's permission to obtain a photographic, xerographic, digital, or other copy of a document doesn't indicate permission to publish, exhibit, perform, reproduce, sell, distribute, or prepare derivative works from this document without first obtaining permission from the copyright holder and from any private individual, group, or corporation shown or otherwise recorded.

Permission to publish, exhibit, perform, reproduce, prepare derivative works from, sell, or otherwise distribute the item must be obtained by the user separately in writing from the holder of the original copyright (or if the creator is dead from his/her heirs) as well as from any individual(s), groups, or corporations whose name, image, recorded words, or private information (e.g., employment information) may be reproduced in the source material. The holder of the original copyright isn't necessarily the National Park Service. The National Park Service is not legally liable for copyright, privacy, or publicity infringement when materials are wrongfully used after being provided to researchers for "fair use."

This institution reserves the right to refuse to accept a copying order if fulfillment of the order is judged in violation of copyright or federal or state privacy or publicity law.

HISTORY

The National Park Service (NPS) was officially established as a bureau under the Department of the Interior (DOI) in 1916, in accordance with the National Park Service Organic Act (39 Stat. 535, 16 U.S.C. 1, as amended in 1935 by 48 Stat. 389). Following the urgings of men such as George Caitlin, David E. Folsom, Henry D. Washburn, and Ferdinand V. Hayden to preserve natural wilderness of the United States, particularly in the west, popular opinion began to swing in favor of preservation and the seeds for national parks and a way to manage them were sown.

National parks existed decades before under the management of various federal departments. Hot Springs (designated as a national park in 1921) was originally established as Hot Springs Reservation in 1832, making it the oldest unit in the National Park System. Yosemite was originally transferred to the State of California as a preserve and public recreational area in 1864 and then brought back as a federal park in 1890. Yellowstone, then barely explored, became the first officially designated national park under the Department of the Interior in 1872 thanks in part to popular support from Montanans and the Northern Pacific Railroad company. In 1875, the majority of Mackinac Island became a national park under the Secretary of War due to the Army's presence there.

The Forest Reserve Act of 1891 gave U.S. presidents the right to designate federal forest preserves on public domains. By 1916, presidents had reserved 176 million acres for this purpose. A similar movement begun around the same time focused on preserving prehistoric and historic sites of the Southwest as national monuments. Casa Grande in Arizona was the first of these national monuments in 1889 authorized by Congress.

The Antiquities Act of 1906 expanded the authority of the President to proclaim historic landmarks, structures, and other objects of national interest on public lands as National Monuments. Over the next one hundred years, U.S. presidents reserved over one hundred sites under the authority of the Antiquities Act of 1906. Many of these sites were established under and administered by Agriculture and War Departments.

By 1916 DOI oversaw fourteen national parks, twenty-one national monuments, and Hot Springs and Casa Grande sites without any systematic management. DOI regularly called on the Army to develop and police Yellowstone and parks in California. The other parks were attended to by untrained civilians or part-time custodians. Most were not well developed or maintained for public use and enjoyment or the continued preservation of resources.

In 1914, Stephen T. Mather – a business executive, civic leader, and conservation proponent – complained to Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane, about the condition of national parks. Lane, an old friend of Mather's, appointed Mather to be a special assistant to work on park issues. With his top aide Horace M. Albright, he laid the groundwork to establish a system of National Parks and worked with Members of Congress to secure passage of the National Park Service Act in 1916 bringing all DOI managed parks under NPS jurisdiction. Under Mather, as the first NPS director and Albright, assistant director until 1919, NPS improved the preservation and interpretation of current parks, primarily in the West, and established guidelines for identifying potential new sites, such as Mt. McKinley in 1917.

In 1933 historic sites, landmarks, and monuments held under other government bureaus – such as several Civil War battlefields, which were originally administered by the Department of War – were transferred to NPS after years of fighting by NPS officials to interpret and manage these sites. New legislation signed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt also guaranteed all new national sites established would also be under NPS jurisdiction. This reorganization created the system of parks which would continue into the 21st century and increased the visibility of NPS and their parks with Congress and tourists. Following reorganization, President Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal in 1933 created onsite and regional park offices to better provide onsite administration and protection of the sites. Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC), established under the New Deal, spread six hundred camps across the U.S. by 1965 to perform further maintenance, preservation, conservation, and rehabilitation of park structures, roadways and trails, and exhibits. The scientists, historians, engineers, curators, and others originally hired under the CCC would remain on at many of the parks to form regional and site administrations.

After declining during World War I, the Great Depression, and World War II interest in national parks soared in the late 1940s. Director Conrad Wirth responded to the crisis of overcrowded facilities with Mission 66 in 1951; a ten year plan to rehabilitate and expand the use of the parks for public enjoyment, education, and preservation. The National Survey of Historic Sites and Buildings, begun in 1935 with the Historic Sites Act, was reinstated to evaluate each park's current status and needs. George B. Hartzog, director after Wirth in 1964, added sixty-nine new parks to the service as part of the expansion policies of Mission 66. The National Register of Historic Places, begun in 1966 as a response to urban expansion and administered by the NPS, also expanded national historic site recognition.

In 1964, Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall signed a management policy which created three distinct areas of focus for National parks: natural, historical, and recreational. The third was a departure from a 1953 directive by Congress for the NPS to avoid recreational uses, due to concern of preservation spoiled by use. NPS added one hundred thirty-one new parks, including large tracts in Alaska, as it continued to expand the interpretative, educational, and environmental resources for many of its holdings and to acquire sites across the U.S. These acquisitions were aided by the Land and Water Conservation Act Fund Act of 1965 which allotted certain fees and charges to be used in the purchasing of new sites.

The Wilderness Act of 1964 addressed growing concerns that the parks were becoming overdeveloped. Although Wirth opposed the act, believing that the NPS managed its wilderness areas sufficiently, the act was passed and a careful examination of all parks was begun. By 2005 more than half of NPS lands were designated wilderness areas. During this time, both historical and recreational park sites increased, including twelve presidential sites and over a dozen water-activity sites (national seashores and reservoirs).

During the 1970s, 1980s, and 1990s the NPS system continued to expand greatly. Against this expansion, park selection criteria were more strictly defined and Congress supported the Service's Park Restoration and Improvement Plan to allocate resources to strengthening the services and access of current parks. By 1974 the three designation system was out of date and a single management policy for the park system was adopted in 1975. Also in the 1970s great portions of Alaska were deemed national sites, ending one of the 20th century's largest conservation campaigns.

The idea for Harpers Ferry Center (HFC) dates back to the early years of George Hartzog's tenure as director of the National Park Service and the implementation of Mission 66. Hartzog became director in January 1964 and one month later named Bill Everhart chief of the new Division of Interpretation and Visitor Services. The new division's job was to centralize the various interpretive functions – audiovisual, publications, museum exhibits – and coordinate their activities. For example, the Museum Branch was split into two main factions, the East Museum Laboratory in Washington, D.C., and the West Museum Laboratory in San Francisco.

Opened in 1970, the Harpers Ferry Center was conceived and staffed as a “think tank” environment for interpretive services. The center was located near Mather Training Center for easy access to training and Harpers Ferry National Historical Park as a testing ground for new interpretive products and services. This centralization of services created the need for a local service-wide collection devoted to preserving agency history, better known as the National Park Service Archives.

The idea for a central archive had been around for decades but it took the approaching 1972 NPS Centennial to put a plan into action for the collection. As historians began to compile sources and materials for a one-hundred year history of the NPS publication, they expressed their frustration in locating essential agency records and instances of missing documentation to the central office in Washington, D.C. Everhart, along with NPS oral historian and retired NPS Chief of Information Herbert Evison, pressured Director Hartzog for approval of an archives program.

Assistant to the Director, Cornelius W. Heine was officially put in charge of the development of a central archives program in 1967. Heine compiled reports from over one-hundred ninety parks on specific recommendations for the new program, including scope, staffing, and location. On 1970, Director Hartzog approved creation of the NPS archives, established under Everhart at the Harpers Ferry Center, with David H. Wallace as the first head archivist.

The creation of the archives included an oral history project and collection of artifacts such as uniforms and badges (eventually separated into the NPS Material Culture Collection”). In 1975 the name of the collection was changed from “NPS Archives” to the “NPS History Collection” to avoid confusion between official NPS records housed with the National Archives and Records Administration and unofficial records housed with the Harpers Ferry Center.

Over the decades, as the collection grew and services expanded, the archives were moved from the Shipley School building (1972) in Harpers Ferry, WV to the Lewis W. Anthony building (1975) also in Harpers Ferry, WV. In 2009 the collection was moved to Charles Town, WV in the Harpers Ferry Center Willow Springs facility. This brought together the History Collection, NPS History Photograph collection, and the Cultural Material collection under one roof and management.

1. SUB-SUBSERIES 1: RECORDS OF WILLIAM PENN MOTT, JR., 1968-1992

William Penn Mott, Jr. was born on October 19, 1909 in New York City. He moved to Jonesville, Michigan in 1925, where his interest with nature blossomed. This passion led him to dedicate his life to the preservation of the nation's natural resources. Mott earned his bachelor's degree in landscape architecture from Michigan State University in 1931, and his master's degree from the University of California-Berkley. Mott married his wife Ruth in 1934 and settled in the San Francisco area.

Mott began as a landscape architect for the NPS western regional office in 1933. In this role, he served as supervisor of landscaping projects of the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC) and Works Progress Administration (WPA). The constant travel required for this position left him with little time to spend with his family. In 1940, Mott left the NPS to start his own landscaping business, which allowed him to spend more time at home.

His work was highly regarded and led to his appointment as Superintendent of Parks for the City of Oakland in 1946. Over the next seventeen years, Mott helped reshape the city's parks and held the respect of his staff through his open management style. In 1962 he was named General Manager of the East Bay Regional Park District in San Francisco. During his tenure he more than doubled the land allocated for parks, increased the number of parks from five to twenty-five, and attracted more than triple the number of visitors to the city's parks.

Governor Ronald Reagan appointed him as Director of California's Department of Parks and Recreation in 1967. Mott added an additional 154,000 acres to California's 800,000 acres of state park system. His work led to the addition of twenty-four new areas to the state system, some of which were added after he left the position in 1974. After his departure, Mott continued his efforts to improve the parks of California. He served as general manager of the East Bay Zoological Society (overseeing the Oakland Zoo) and as president of the California State Park Foundation, a non-profit organization he founded in 1969.

President Reagan turned to his former appointee in 1985 and appointed Mott as the twelfth Director of the NPS. During this tenure, he introduced his "Twelve Point Plan," in order to protect the parks, better serve the public, and generally improve the management of the NPS. Points of his plan included the development of long-term strategic plans, encourage public interest in the interpretation programs of the parks and advance the understanding of the functions of the NPS, improve facilities at parks, and develop better relationships between the parks and concessioners.

Mott served as NPS Director until April 1989 when President George H. W. Bush replaced him with James Ridenour. However, he continued to work with the NPS as a special assistant for the director of the Western Region overseeing the transition of the Presidio in San Francisco from a military unit to a National Park site. Mott died from pneumonia in 1992.

This sub-subseries documents the efforts of Director Mott during the time period of 1985-1986. Some of the material predates his tenure and was most likely used by him for reference purposes. Materials include correspondence, reports and plans, clippings, newsletters, and publications, relating to marketing, legislative files, appropriations and budget matters, and proposals.

During the Great Depression, President Franklin D. Roosevelt proposed to Congress that a program be established that focused on the conservation of the nation's natural resources while providing young men with the opportunity for employment. Congress agreed, and the Emergency Conservation Work Act (ECW) was authorized on March 31, 1933. Five days later, President Roosevelt issued Executive Order 6101, which established the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC). The first director of the CCC was Robert Fechner, the Vice President of the American Machinists Union. Four departments - Labor, Agriculture, Interior and the Army - worked together to establish and operate the camps. Labor selected the enrollees and provided their work standards, while the Army ran the camps. Both Agriculture (primarily the Forest Service) and Interior (primarily the National Park Service) were the technical advisors since most of the work was completed on lands they managed.

Initially only young unmarried men between the ages of 18-26 could enlist in the CCC, for a minimum period of six months and with the possibility of re-enlistment. On May 11, 1933 President Roosevelt issued Executive Order 6129, granting permission to men of any age (married or single) to enroll. This was done in part to provide work opportunities to veterans (nearly 25,000 of whom enrolled). By June 29, 1933, 270,000 young men were working in 1,330 camps. Additionally the program employed educational advisors, which allowed enrollees opportunities to further their education upon leaving the CCC. Average strength was 300,000 in 1,500 camps, or about 200 men per camp. The height was reached in 1936 with over 500,000 enrollees.

The CCC established camps in all 48 states as well as the various U.S. territories (including Hawaii and Alaska). In total, almost three million men enrolled in the CCC. Most of their earnings were sent home to their families, inasmuch the CCC provided room, board, medical care, and uniforms although individual CCC enrollees usually kept a portion of their salaries for incidental expenses.

The CCC included Native Americans and African Americans among its enrollees. Most camps were segregated with white officers supervising both white and black the workers, while Native Americans performed work on their own reservations and did not live in camps like other enrollees.

CCC enrollees performed various types of jobs, all in some way related to conservation. These jobs were in forests, on military and Indian reservations, and in parks. The National Park Service (NPS) was in charge of the work in the parks, including municipal, county and state, as well as national parks.

With the government-wide Land Planning Committee, the NPS initiated the Recreation Demonstration Areas, most of which later became state or national park areas. As an agency of the Department of the Interior, the NPS also became responsible for all work done by the CCC in the territories. Enrollees cleared underbrush, helped in historic excavations and stabilization of buildings and ruins. In addition, they built and constructed numerous features including: roads and trails, park buildings and structures, campgrounds, picnic areas, fireplaces, signs and exhibits, and erected telephone poles and electric lights. Enrollees also did some reforestation in the parks (although most of this was completed under the Forest Service), organized eradication campaigns against harmful insects and tree diseases, and fought fires and helped in natural disasters.

From the beginning, an NPS official served as Interior's representative on the CCC Advisory Board. NPS Director Horace Albright helped set up the initial organization and then was replaced by Director Arno Cammerer. Conrad Wirth, who was in charge of the state and local parks program, replaced Cammerer on the Board in 1937. The CCC also influenced the NPS administration by prompting NPS to regionalize for administrative purposes (with NPS regionalization reflecting the CCC regionalization). The Historic Sites Act of 1935 (the result of NPS efforts to protect "historic and archeological site, buildings, and objects") allowed the NPS to hire historical technicians to work at CCC camps. Many of these technical advisors later became Park Service historians.

One of the sites that benefitted from the CCC was Saratoga National Historical Park. After years of local efforts to preserve the Saratoga battlefield, it became a New York State Historical Preserve in October 1927. A decade later, on June 1st, 1938, Congress passed Public Law 576, which authorized the creation of the park. The CCC helped build infrastructure necessary to make the park accessible to the public. Enrollees conducted surveys as well as historical and archeological research; removed fences, orchards, houses and barns; and provided roads and grounds maintenance.

In June 1937, Congress extended the CCC for three more years, as well as making Civilian Conservation Corps its official name. In addition, limits were also placed on the number of enrollments an individual could serve. In 1939, the CCC was placed under the Federal Security Agency. Later that year, Fechner died and his assistant, James J. McEntee, assumed the directorship. Beginning in 1940, the CCC focused its efforts on military reservations. With the entry of the United States in World War II, Congress, against Roosevelt's wishes, abolished the Corps on June 30, 1942.

Arranged alphabetically by subject or document type.

This sub-subseries documents the efforts of the CCC at various parks of the NPS including Saratoga, Shenandoah, Great Smoky Mountains, and Hawaii. Material includes correspondence, memos, articles, clippings, meeting minutes, directories, reports, maps, training manuals, publications, and press releases.

III. SERIES III: PARK PLANNING, FACILITIES, AND LANDS RECORDS, 1915-2001

A. SUBSERIES A: DESIGN AND CONSTRUCTION RECORDS, 1915-1994

Arranged alphabetically by subject or document type.

This subseries documents the activities of the Design and Construction Division of the NPS. That division provides assistance in all matters related to site improvement including: project management, quality assurance, compliance, and support for projects on new and existing building and structures. Additionally, the division manages projects throughout all phases of a typical five-year design and construction life-cycle, from project initiation through post-construction. Materials include technical manuals, correspondence, memos, studies and reports, meeting agendas and notes, maps, drawings, and photographic material.

B. SUBSERIES B: INFRASTRUCTURE RECORDS, 1922-1989

C. SUBSERIES C: RECORDS OF AREAS ADMINISTERED, 1935-1992

D. SUBSERIES D: RECORDS OF ABOLISHED AREAS, 1919-2004

Arranged alphabetically by park, and thereunder alphabetically by subject or record type.

The number of sites administered by the National Park Service (NPS) has expanded since its creation in 1916. As of 2013, there were 401 units under the guidance of the NPS. Sometimes areas are redesignated (e.g. – Platt National Park to Chickasaw National Recreation Area), incorporated into a larger unit (e.g. – Ackia Battlefield National Monument and Meriwether Lewis National Monument into Natchez Trace Parkway; General Grant National Park into Kings Canyon National Park), or divided into multiple sites (e.g. – Hawaii National Park into Hawaii Volcanoes National Park and Haleakala National Park), but remain in the system. In addition, Congress has voted to abolish or de-designate several National Parks, owing to budget concerns, poor visitation, or diminished integrity of the site. Delisted areas are usually transferred to State Governments or other Federal agencies, most of which continue to keep these areas open to the public.

This subseries documents the parks that have been delisted or abolished as NPS Sites including: Castle Pickney National Monument, Flaming Gorge National Recreation Area, Fossil Cycad National Monument, Shadow Mountain National Recreation Area, and Verendrye National Monument. Materials include correspondence, reports, clippings, photographs, brochures, manuals, and legislative acts abolishing area.

E. SUBSERIES E: RECORDS OF PROPOSED AREAS, 1924-1993

F. SUBSERIES F: MAPS, 1933-2001

G. SUBSERIES G: ALASKA RESEARCH FILES, 1938-2003

Organized into eight sub-subseries: Sub-subseries 1: Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act (ANILCA); Sub-subseries 2: Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act (ANCSA); Sub-subseries 3: Alaska Task Force; Sub-subseries 4: Articles; Sub-subseries 5: Federal Interests; Sub-subseries 6: Legislation; Sub-subseries 7: National Park Service; and Sub-subseries 8: State Interests.

This subseries documents the local and national interests in the preservation and land use in Alaska following its statehood, including native tribe claims and the designation and expansion of national parks and monuments. The majority of the records relate to the action of the U.S. government by agencies such as the Department of the Interior, Bureau of Land Management, and the National Park System. This includes the establishment of Alaska statehood, passage of public laws, and the creation of national parks. Materials include reports, bills and legislation, research files, notes, reference guides, correspondence, meeting agendas and minutes, articles, photographs, and maps.

1. SUB-SUBSERIES 1: ALASKA NATIONAL INTEREST LANDS CONSERVATION ACT (ANILCA), 1972-1982

The Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act (ANILCA) was created to address the concerns of the environmental community and the potential for over-development of the natural lands (referred to as d-2 lands) of Alaska. Section 17 (d)

(2) of the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act (ANCSA), directed the Secretary of the Interior to withdraw 80 million acres of significant federal lands from development. These lands were to be available for potential congressional designation as national parks, wildlife refuges, wild and scenic rivers, or national forests.

A provision in the Act set a deadline for Congress to respond; if it did not act to designate these lands earmarked for special protections by 1978, the withdrawal would expire and the lands would be reopened to development. As contentious and lengthy negotiations dragged on and numerous versions of ANILCA were considered, the ANCSA deadline for addressing "d-2" lands was drawing near. Using the Antiquities Act, President Jimmy Carter designated 100 million acres for federal land use as national monuments by withdrawing them from development by executive order on December 1, 1978 as a way to prevent this land from being subjected to development. Congress finally passed a final version of ANILCA (Public Law 96-487) that President Carter signed into law on December 2, 1980.

Arranged alphabetically by subject.

Records contain research files, reports, correspondence, and memos. Also included are notes on the enforcement, access and use, and management of the selected lands.

2. SUB-SUBSERIES 2: ALASKA NATIVE CLAIMS SETTLEMENT ACT (ANCSA), 1966-1979

Alaska became the 49th state on January 3, 1959. Under the Statehood Act (Public Law 85-508), Alaska was allowed to select 104 million acres of "vacant, unappropriated, unreserved" land as state property to be used to generate revenue. This created conflict with Alaska Natives, who felt their land was being taken away from them, and the state, which believed the land to be uninhabited and therefore open to claim. Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall got involved and tried to reach an agreement between the state and the Alaska Natives. However, after oil was discovered in Prudhoe Bay in 1968, more private industries became involved in advocating a lands claim settlement for the native tribes. Passed as Public Law 92-203, the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act (ANCSA) was approved by Congress on December 18, 1971. It created twelve Native-owned regional corporations which could select and purchase land in Alaska.

Arranged alphabetically by subject.

Records contain initial complaints by Alaska Natives, correspondence, and reports. Also included are memos, press releases, correspondence, and research following the establishment of the Act and its subsequent enactment.

3. SUB-SUBSERIES 3: ALASKA TASK FORCE, 1965-1983

The Alaska Task Force, created in 1972, served an integral role in the National Park Service's decade-long project for identifying and prioritizing Alaskan lands for preservation. Coordinated by Theodore Swem, the work of the task force led to greater knowledge of Alaska's proposed areas and areas of ecological concern. The task force's efforts culminated in the passage of ANILCA in 1980, which extended national park system protection to ten new areas and additions to three existing ones. All together, the Alaska units added 43,600,000 acres to the National Park Service.

Arranged alphabetically by subject.

Materials include reports, correspondence, and research files. The bulk of the records were created and used by specific members, including Ted Swem (Assistant Director to the Director, 1971-1976) and John Wise (Superintendent of Wupatki National Monument, 1974 to 1977).

4. SUB-SUBSERIES 4: ARTICLES, 1965-1991

Arranged alphabetically by subject.

Files contain articles and news clippings related to a variety of issues in Alaska including the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act, Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act, oil drilling, development and conservation of lands, and publicity for the natural wonders of Alaska.

5. SUB-SUBSERIES 5: FEDERAL INTERESTS, 1938-1983

Arranged alphabetically by subject.

Files contain briefings of the Bureau of Land Management, Department of the Interior, National Forest Service, and other non-National Park Service federal divisions relating to interests in Alaska. Other material includes correspondence, memos, and reports.

6. SUB-SUBSERIES 6: LEGISLATION, 1970-1990

Arranged alphabetically by subject and numerically by bill number.

Materials include bills, comparisons, notes, and related congressional speeches. These files refer to actions proposed by Congress regarding Alaska. The majority of the records relate to House of Representatives bill H.R. 39, introduced by Stewart Udall, Secretary of the Interior, and President Dwight D. Eisenhower to preserve the Arctic coastal plain in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge.

7. SUB-SUBSERIES 7: NATIONAL PARK SERVICE, 1940-2003

Arranged alphabetically by subject.

Files contain plans, reports, memos, briefings, and correspondence of areas created and managed by the National Park Service. Also included are master plans for each established park.

8. SUB-SUBSERIES 8: STATE INTERESTS, 1944-1984

Arranged alphabetically by subject.

Materials include correspondence, reports, and news briefs. Also included are petitions from various state departments, such as Fish and Wildlife, and non-profit groups interested in the development of Alaska.

I. SUBSERIES I: NATURE NOTES, 1920-1960

Arranged alphabetically by park, and thereunder chronologically.

This subseries contains copies of the newsletter Nature Notes, which focused on the natural resources of the NPS sites. National Parks include Acadia, Glacier, Hot Springs, Mount Rainier, Yellowstone, and Yosemite. Material includes newsletters and indexes.

V. SERIES V: CULTURAL RESOURCES MANAGEMENT RECORDS, 1895-2007

Organized into five subseries: Subseries A: Archeological Records; Subseries B: Historic Preservation Records; Subseries C: Library and Archives Material; Subseries D: Museum Management Records; and Subseries E: Oral Histories.

This series documents the activities of the Cultural Resources Divisions of the National Park Service. The records provide an overview of daily division operations, projects, goals, studies and reports, and general service history. Materials include correspondence, meeting agendas and minutes, clippings, magazines and journals, photographs, brochures, and reports.

A. SUBSERIES A: ARCHEOLOGICAL RECORDS, 1904-2004

Arranged by record type, and thereunder alphabetically by subject.

This subseries documents the archeological dealings of the National Park service, including published manuals, guidelines, project proposals, region reports, legislation affecting archeological programs and resources, and general and administrative information from various parks. Publications, reports in both bound and unbound form, correspondence, brochures, and manuals are included.

B. SUBSERIES B: HISTORIC PRESERVATION RECORDS, 1905-2005

Organized into four sub-subseries: Sub-subseries 1: Administrative Records; Sub-subseries 2: Organization and Program Files; Sub-subseries 3: Project Files; and Sub-subseries 4: Reference Material.

This subseries documents the efforts of the Historic Preservation Division of the National Park Service. The records highlight both the administrative activities as well as the projects undertaken by the division. Material consists of correspondence and memos, reports and studies, meeting and conference material, publications and handbooks, photographs, and clippings.

1. SUB-SUBSERIES 1: ADMINISTRATIVE RECORDS, 1905-1999

Arranged by record type, and thereunder chronologically.

This sub-subseries documents the administrative and decision-making policies of the Historic Preservation Division. The records provide an overview of daily division policies, project status, decisions, and general park history. Materials include correspondence and memos, reports, meeting minutes, conference notes, and draft and printed copies of legislation that authorizes the historic preservation functions of the NPS.

2. SUB-SUBSERIES 2: PROJECT FILES, 1936-1999

Arranged alphabetically by project, and thereunder by record type.

This sub-subseries documents the service-wide preservation activities of the division. Files include manuscripts, reports, studies, correspondence and memos, reprints, and clippings.

3. SUB-SUBSERIES 3: ORGANIZATION AND PROGRAM FILES, 1935-2005

Arranged alphabetically by name, and thereunder by subject.

This sub-subseries documents the various preservation organizations and programs under the guidance of the NPS. Programs documented include Historic American Buildings Survey/Historic American Engineering Record (HABS/HAER), National Historic Landmarks Program, National Register of Historic Places, National Survey of Historic Sites and Buildings, Advisory Council on Historic Preservation, American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society, National Council for Historic Sites and Buildings, and National Trust for Historic Preservation. Materials consists of data sheets, reports, Federal Register notices, handbooks, press releases, nomination forms, catalogs, memos, correspondence, meeting minutes, and inventories.

4. SUB-SUBSERIES 4: REFERENCE MATERIAL, 1936-1995

Arranged by record type, and thereunder chronologically.

This sub-subseries contains information used by personnel for historic preservation reference purposes. Materials include memos and directives, handbooks, manuals on general NPS policies and standards related to conservation and historic preservation, and serial publications on historic preservation issues.

C. SUBSERIES C: LIBRARY AND ARCHIVES MATERIAL, 1933-2007

Arranged by record type, and thereunder alphabetically by subject.

This series documents the activities of the National Park Service Library and Archives, located at Harpers Ferry Center in Charles Town, West Virginia. The records provide an overview of daily division operations, projects, goals, studies and reports, and general service history. Materials consists of correspondence, meeting agendas and minutes, clippings, magazines and journals, photographs, brochures, and reports.

D. SUBSERIES D: MUSEUM MANAGEMENT RECORDS, 1895-2004

Organized into five sub-subseries: Sub-Subseries 1: Administrative Records; Sub-Subseries 2: Regional Offices Records; Sub-Subseries 3: Museum Collections Documentation; Sub-Subseries 4: Exhibit Files; and Sub-Subseries 5: Reference Files.

This subseries documents the activities of the Museum Management Branch of the National Park Service. The records highlight both the administrative activities as well as exhibits created by the division. Material consists of correspondence and memos, meeting and conference materials, publications, reports, catalog records, inventories, and clippings.

1. SUB-SUBSERIES 1: ADMINISTRATIVE RECORDS, 1934-2003

Arranged alphabetically by format (Cartoons, Cases, Central Files, Conferences, Correspondence and Memos, Dailies, Directories, Meetings, News Releases, Newsletter, Policies, Programs, Reports, Speeches, and Training), and thereunder chronologically.

This sub-subseries documents the administrative and decision-making records of the National Park Service. The records provide an overview of daily park operations, policy decisions, studies, project status, and general park history. Materials include central files, correspondence, meeting agendas and minutes, clippings, magazines and journals, training material, and reports. Central files arranged by alpha-numeric codes (A=Administration, D=Development and Maintenance; F=Fiscal, H=History and Archeology, K=Interpretation and Information, L=Lands, S=Supplies, Procurement and Property).

2. SUB-SUBSERIES 2: REGIONAL OFFICES RECORDS, 1932-2000

Arranged alphabetically by regional office, and thereunder alphabetically by format.

This sub-subseries highlights the museum management activities of the regional offices. Files include correspondence, reports, meeting agendas and minutes, clippings, project files, and reference material.

3. SUB-SUBSERIES 3: MUSEUM COLLECTIONS DOCUMENTATION, 1926-2001

Arranged by record type.

This sub-subseries contains records documenting the museum collection activities of the NPS. Materials include catalog records, inventories, loan agreements, and reports.

4. SUB-SUBSERIES 4: EXHIBIT FILES, 1895-1996

Arranged by record type. Administrative files are arranged alphabetically by format; exhibits are arranged alphabetically by park; and history files are arranged chronologically.

This sub-subseries documents service-wide exhibitions and related activities. Files include correspondence, reports, clippings, photographs, meeting agendas and minutes, planning documents, and research files.

5. SUB-SUBSERIES 5: REFERENCE FILES, 1928-2004

Arranged by record type.

This sub-subseries contains information (such as manuals, correspondence, newsletters, and publications like the Conserve-O-Gram) used by personnel for museum management reference purposes. Materials include clippings, manuals, newsletters and other publications, and reports.

XI. SERIES XI: THEMES, ACTIVITIES, AND EVENTS RECORDS, 1886-2006

A. SUBSERIES A: ANNIVERSARIES, 1931-2006

Organized into four sub-subseries: Sub-Subseries 1: National Parks Centennial; Sub-Subseries 2: NPS 75th Anniversary; Sub-Subseries 3: United States Bicentennial; and Sub-Subseries 4: Other Anniversaries.

This subseries highlights the celebration activities of service-wide and national anniversaries by the NPS. Events include the centennial of the establishment of Yellowstone National Park (1972); the Bicentennial of the U.S. (1976); the 25th (1941), 50th (1966), 65th (1981), and 75th (1991) anniversaries of the NPS; the Columbus Quincentennial (1992); and the Bicentennial of the Constitution (1987). Materials include press releases, press clippings, pamphlets, cards, correspondence and memos, books, meeting minutes, media production notes, invitations, photographic materials, audiovisual materials, presentations, plans, reports, newspapers, maps, posters, and pamphlets.

1. SUB-SUBSERIES 1: NATIONAL PARKS CENTENNIAL, 1943-1984, UNDATED (bulk dates: 1966-1973)

On March 1, 1872, President Ulysses S. Grant signed the Yellowstone National Park Act (17 Stat. 32), establishing it as Yellowstone National Park, the first national park in the nation and the world. In preparation for the 100th anniversary of this event, on July 10, 1970, President Richard Nixon signed Public Law 91-332 on July 10, 1972, which created the National Parks Centennial Commission to coordinate activity in celebration of the centennial anniversary of Yellowstone NP. The Commission was in charge of planning the celebration activities as well as also charged with hosting the Second World Conference on National Parks as part of the centennial celebration.

Commission officers included: William J. Briggie, Centennial Director; T. Sutton Jett, Staff Director, and George B. Hartzog, Jr., Executive Director and Director of the National Park Service (NPS). When Director Hartzog was dismissed in December 1972, Ronald H. Walker succeeded him in both positions. Also on the Commission were Presidential appointees Lawrence W. Lane, Jr. of California, Chairman (through January 1, 1972); Edmund B. Thornton, Chairman (after March 13, 1972); Elmer L. Anderson of Minnesota, Henry Phillips Hoffstat of Pennsylvania, W.W. Keeler of Oklahoma, June Larkin of Connecticut, and Richard P. Mellon of Pennsylvania. Commission members appointed by the President of the Senate were Senator Henry M. Jackson of Washington, Senator Alan Bible of Nevada, Senator Paul J. Fannin of Arizona, and Senator Clifford P. Hansen of Wyoming. Commission members appointed by the Speaker of the House were Representative John Melcher of Montana, Representative Thomas S. Foley of Washington, Representative Joe Skubiz of Kansas, and Representative John P. Saylor of Pennsylvania. Statutory members were: Rogers C. B. Morton, Secretary of the Interior, and Laurance S. Rockefeller, the Secretary of the Interior's Representative. Members of the NPS Washington Office staff also worked with the Commission, including Cornelius Heine, Staff Assistant; and Jean Henderer, Director for Public Awareness.

Members of the Secretariat of the Second World Conference on National Parks were: George B. Hartzog, Jr., and Gerardo Budowski, Co-Chairmen; Roger J. Contor, Secretary General; C. Gordon Fredine, Cecil Lewis, and Robert Standish, Deputy Secretaries General; and John Miele and Cornelius Heine, Staff Assistants.

On January 5, 1972, Nixon signed a Proclamation designating 1972 as "National Parks Centennial Year." Also in that year, thirty-nine state governors issued state proclamations recognizing the values of the national parks, and one-hundred twenty-eight mayors issued municipal proclamations.

On March 1, 1972, the 100th anniversary of the creation of Yellowstone National Park, a gala Centennial Banquet was held in the Shoreham Hotel in Washington, DC, with 1300 guests in attendance.

Commemorative postage stamps were issued depicting five NPS sites: Yellowstone NP, Cape Hatteras NS (North Carolina) Wolf Trap Farm Park (Virginia), City of Refuge NHP (Hawaii), and Mount McKinley NP (Alaska). First Day of Issuance of Stamp Ceremonies were held at these sites as well as in Washington, DC. The National Park Foundation entered into a contract with Roche Jaune, Inc. of Kalispell, Montana, to produce a National Park Heritage Series of thirty-six medallions and a "Keystone" medallion for the National Parks Centennial.

Fifteen Establishment Day ceremonies and three Dedications were held at various units of the NPS and an estimated three-hundred commemorative programs were held in other parks throughout 1972.

On September 18-27, 1972 the Second World Conference on National Parks was held in Yellowstone and Grand Teton National Parks. The conference was officially convened by Edmund B. Thornton, on September 19, 1972 at the Old Faithful Lodge. Later in the day, First Lady Pat Nixon rededicated Yellowstone National Park by holding a torch symbolic of the historic Yellowstone campfire of September 19, 1870. Representatives from eighty-three countries attended, with the Department of State providing interpreters and simultaneous interpretation equipment.

In Between 1971 and 1972, the Commission launched a large public information effort. Approximately 2,200 news stories and other articles on the Centennial appeared in the press during 1972. NBC aired a special program of the "Today Show" honoring the national parks, which received 15 million viewers. The network also aired a special production, "From Yellowstone to Tomorrow," with 40 million viewers tuning in to see the program. Other documentary works were produced for British television and for educational distribution.

The Smithsonian Institution sponsored an exhibition of art, "Nineteenth Century Artists Look at National Parks," from June 23-August 27, 1972 at the National Collection of Fine Arts in Washington DC.

William Eddy of the Conservation Foundation produced the film "Earthbound" with National Park Service financial support. It was shown at the Second World Conference with copies were distributed to conference attendees. Book publications marking the Centennial were "Yellowstone: A Century of the Wilderness Idea," by Ann and Myron Sutton; "Family Tree of the National System," by Ronald F. Lee; "The National Park Service," by William C. Everhart; "National Parks of the West," and “National Parks and Monuments,” by Sunset Magazine; and “Consider the Process of Living,” a companion to “Earthbound.”

Corporate sponsors included Eastman Kodak Company, Del Monte Corporation, Union Carbide, California and Hawaiian (C & H) Sugar Company, Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, the Recreational Vehicles Division of Dodge Motor Company, Trans World Airlines (TWA), Continental Oil, Reader’s Digest, and Glenmore Distilleries.

The Commission contracted with the Conservation Foundation, of Washington, DC, to conduct a study of the National Parks System. They submitted a written report entitled “National Parks for the Future,” on September 20, 1972. The final report of the National Parks Centennial Commission, "Preserving a Heritage," was published in book form in 1973. This included policy recommendations of the Commission for future direction of the National Park System.

Arranged alphabetically by subject or document type. Includes groupings for Cornelius Heine, Howard Baker, Jean Henderer, the National Parks Centennial Commission, Photographs, Press Clippings, and the Second World Conference on National Parks, as well as ungrouped files.

This sub-subseries documents the efforts of the National Parks Centennial Commission in planning the celebration activities for the centennial anniversary of the establishment of the first national park (Yellowstone National Park) in 1872. Files were produced by the Commission for both internal communications and public release. Materials include correspondence, books, meeting minutes, memoranda, press releases, press clippings, media production notes, reports, invitations, guest and donor lists, reference material, photographic materials, textile objects, posters, maps, audiovisual materials, and oversize documents. Materials were produced by the office of the National Parks Centennial Commission or by contracted parties for the Commission, for both internal communications and for public release. The bulk of the records were held maintained by staffers Cornelius Heine and Jean Henderer.

Additional information on the Second World Conference can be found in Series XI, Subseries C, Sub-Subseries 2.

2. SUB-SUBSERIES 2: NPS 75TH ANNIVERSARY, 1936-1992, UNDATED (bulk dates: 1989-1992)

Arranged alphabetically by subject or record type.

This sub-subseries documents the planning and arrangement efforts, marketing and advertising campaigns, and the celebration activities for the 75th anniversary of the National Park Service in 1991. The files of William Sontag, chairman of the 75th Anniversary organization committee, are located in this sub-subseries. Materials include correspondence, reports, clippings, photographs, ephemera, news releases, meeting and committee minutes, publications, marketing files, and speeches.

3. SUB-SUBSERIES 3: UNITED STATES BICENTENNIAL, 1937-1992

4. SUB-SUBSERIES 4: OTHER ANNIVERSARIES, 1931-2006, UNDATED (bulk dates: 1941-1990)

Arranged alphabetically by subject

This sub-subseries documents anniversaries of historical events relevant to American history as presented at National Park Service sites, the National Park Service itself, and the Department of the Interior. Anniversaries include the 25th (1941), 50th (1966), and 65th (1991) anniversaries of the NPS; the Columbus Quincentennial (1992); Sesquicentennial of the Victory at Yorktown (1931); and the Cuarto Centennial of the Coronado Explorations (1540-1542). Materials include press releases, press clippings, pamphlets, cards, correspondence, presentations, plans, reports, photographs, newspapers, posters, pamphlets, decals, and one 5.25 in. floppy disk. Related materials can be found in the other sub-subseries under Series XI: Themes, Activities, and Events; Subseries A: Anniversaries.

B. SUBSERIES B: DEDICATIONS, 1946-1989, UNDATED

C. SUBSERIES C: CONFERENCES, 1911-2005, UNDATED

Organized into two sub-subseries: Sub-subseries 1: National Park Conferences and Sub-subseries 2: World Conferences.

This subseries contains materials related to conferences, meetings, and symposiums related to the interests of the National Park Service. The records include programs, agendas, brochures, correspondence, planning documents, minutes, reviews, and recommendations generated by conference planners, host sites, and attendees.

1. SUB-SUBSERIES 1: NATIONAL PARK CONFERENCES, 1911-2005, UNDATED

The number of national parks and monuments had grown by the early 1900s. This expansion emphasized the need for more uniformity and better communication among parks and their management personnel. In September 1911, the first National Park Conference was held in Yellowstone National Park. The purpose of the conference was to determine the best course of action in the administration of these sites. The second conference was held in October 1912 at Yosemite National Park and the third in March 1915 in Berkeley, California. By the time the National Park Service was established in 1916, a biennial pattern had emerged. The biennial meetings of superintendents continued until 1965 when regional meetings took their place.

As the National Park Service grew and became more complicated, conferences were developed to support the needs of other park personnel. Interpreters have met since 1929 and the first National Park Service Women's Conference took place in 1979.

Arranged alphabetically by conference category.

Record groups include Interpreters' Conferences, Regional Conferences, Resource Management Conferences, Scientific Conferences, Special Meetings, Superintendents' Conferences, and Women's Conferences. Materials include proceedings, programs, agendas, brochures, correspondence, planning documents, minutes, reviews, recommendations, photographs, and audiovisual materials.

2. SUB-SUBSERIES 2: WORLD CONFERENCES, 1958-1984, UNDATED

The First World Conference on National Parks was organized by the International Union for Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources (IUCN) and held at Seattle, Washington, from June 30 to July 7, 1962. The Conference was co-sponsored by United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO), the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO), the National Park Service and the Natural Resources Council of America.

The First World Conference participants recommended that another conference be held at Yellowstone Park on the centennial of its establishment in 1972. The conference was sponsored and organized by the National Parks Centennial Commission, the NPS, and the IUCN. It was co-sponsored by UNESCO, FAO, and the Natural Resources Council of America.

The World National Parks Congress was held in Bali, Indonesia, October 11-22, 1982. As with the First and Second World Conferences, it was organized and sponsored by IUCN. Co-sponsors included the United Nations Education Program (UNEP), UNESCO, FAO, World Wildlife Fund (WWF), Parks Canada, NPS, and the Government of Indonesia.

Arranged by conference group.

Contains the records of four world conferences hosted by the NPS to further the awareness and management of national conservation areas, historic sites, and recreation areas around the world. Conference groups include First World's Conference, Second World's Conference, World National Parks Congress, and First World Conference on Cultural Parks. Materials include proceedings, programs, agendas, brochures, correspondence, reviews, and recommendations.

D. SUBSERIES D: EVENTS, 1945-1998

E. SUBSERIES E: PROGRAMS, 1960-2000

Organized into three sub-subseries: Sub-Subseries 1: Mission 66; Sub-Subseries 2: Artists in Parks; and Sub-subseries 3: Other Programs.

1. SUB-SUBSERIES 1: MISSION 66, 1937-2003, UNDATED (bulk dates: 1955-1965)

The National Park Service (NPS) was established in 1916 (39 Stat. 535, 16 U.S.C. 1, as amended in 1935 by 48 Stat. 389) with the goal of preserving and protecting the natural resources of the country. In 1933, Franklin D. Roosevelt was inaugurated as the 32nd president of the United States. One of his first acts as president was to transfer fifty-six national monuments and military sites over to the NPS, thus expanding the agency's scope and mission. President Roosevelt also implemented his New Deal policies to provide relief, recovery, and reform to Americans suffering from the Great Depression. Work programs, including the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC), Emergency Relief Administration (ERA), Public Works Administration (PWA), Civil Works Administration (CWA), and Works Progress Administration (WPA), were created under the New Deal, and all provided the NPS with funds and personnel to improve and enhance the national parks. As the NPS grew, so did the number of annual visitors.

Upon the United States' entry into World War II, New Deal policies ended and park visitation decreased. When the war ended, park visitation increased, but park improvement policies did not resume. Limited funding and staffing, combined with the high volume of visitors, meant many parks could not maintain road, trails, and other facilities. Many parks fell into a state of disrepair. The conditions were so bad that NPS Director Newton Drury described the parks as "victims of war."

In 1953, an essay entitled "Let's Close the National Parks" by Bernard DeVoto appeared in Harpers Magazine. DeVoto believed that the poor conditions of the parks resulted from a lack of financial resources, and he proposed all parks be closed until they received appropriate funding. His story caught the interest of long-time park advocate John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who immediately wrote President Dwight D. Eisenhower regarding his concerns over the state of the national parks. His letter prompted President Eisenhower to ask Secretary of the Interior Douglas McKay for a briefing on the condition of the parks. While little resulted from the meeting, it highlighted an increasing level of concern about the state of the national parks. In 1955, NPS Director Conrad L. Wirth proposed a decade-long, congressionally funded program to improve the parks by 1966. Wirth called it Mission 66 and its ending coincided with the fiftieth anniversary of the NPS. On July 1, 1956, Congress approved money for the program.

Over the next ten years, nearly a billion dollars was spent on the Mission 66 program. This funding built visitor centers, fixed roads, upgraded sewer systems, and improved campgrounds. The NPS also expanded with the addition of sites such as Cape Cod National Seashore, Glen Canyon National Recreation Area, and Point Reyes National Seashore. Yet while the program made improvements, it still met criticism. Critics argued that improvements at urban parks such as Independence National Historical Park (Philadelphia, PA) and Jefferson National Expansion Memorial (St. Louis, MO) came at the expense of the urban landscape. For example, the creation of Independence Mall necessitated the demolition of 19th century structures and the Gateway Arch removed forty blocks from the city property.

Mission 66 critics argued that many of the structures built under the program eventually were demolished or fell into disrepair. Environmentalists were as likely to confront the NPS as they were to support it. Despite this, national parks remained widely popular. Mission 66 accomplished what Director Wirth envisioned when he created the program. The overall state of the national parks improved. Every park in the system completed important construction projects. Museum exhibits, informational pamphlets, and audiovisual programs were developed. The number of personnel working in the parks increased, interpretation programs generated service-wide recognition, and annual visitation continued to grow.

Arranged alphabetically by subject or document type, and thereunder chronologically.

This sub-subseries documents the efforts and activities of the NPS under the Mission 66 program. The bulk of the collection contains informational brochures the NPS produced for each park describing the plans for improving that specific site. Other materials include articles, NPS and non-NPS publications, speeches by NPS Director Conrad Wirth and other members of the Mission 66 Advisory and Steering Committees, notebooks, photographs, planning documents, reports, and files regarding post-Mission 66 efforts.

3. SUB-SUBSERIES 3: OTHER PROGRAMS

F. SUBSERIES F: RAILROAD PUBLICITY, 1886-1996

Arranged alphabetically by railroad company or travel agency, and thereunder alphabetically by subject or document type.

This subseries documents the advertising campaigns used by various railroad companies and travel agencies launched to encourage the public to visit the national parks. Companies/agencies include Ames Brothers Company, Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, Pennsylvania Railroad, Sanger Tours, and Union Pacific Railroad. Material includes brochures, time tables, rates, maps, memos, press releases, and newsletters.

XII. SERIES XII: NPS HISTORY FILES, 1907-1993

A. SUBSERIES A: SUBJECT FILES, 1907-1993

B. SUBSERIES B: PARK HISTORICAL REFERENCE FILES, 1907-1991

XIII. SERIES XIII: RECORDS OF THE OFFICE OF PUBLICATIONS, 1912-2003

XIV. SERIES XIV: PAPERS AND WORKING FILES OF NPS EMPLOYEES, 1879-1992, UNDATED

Organized into seven subseries: Subseries A: Ronald F. Lee Papers and Working Files; Subseries B: Vera Craig Working Files; Subseries C: Jesse L. Nusbaum Papers and Working Files; Subseries D: Harold L. Peterson; Subseries E: Verne E. Chatelain; Subseries F: Robert M. Utley; and Subseries G: Ernest A. Connally.

This series contains the personal papers and working files of National Park Service personnel. Its records provide an overview of the contributions and efforts made by various individuals service-wide. Files were generated by archeologists, naturalists, historians, administrative officials, and park rangers. Materials include correspondence, meeting agendas and minutes, clippings, magazines and journals, photographs, brochures, reports, and research files.

A. SUBSERIES A: RONALD F. LEE PAPERS AND WORKING FILES, 1879-1985, UNDATED

Ronald F. Lee served the National Park Service as chief historian, Assistant Director, and Northeast Regional Director. He was born in Montevideo, Minnesota, September 18, 1905, to Ernest Powers and Maude Susan (Anthony) Lee. The family moved to Dickinson, North Dakota, and Lee was educated in the Dickinson public schools. He received a BS in economics from the University of Minnesota in 1927 and an MA in American history from the University of Chicago in 1929. Lee taught history at LaSalle (Illinois) Junior College during 1929-1931 and from 1931-1933 was a teaching fellow in the History Department of the University of Minnesota while pursuing doctoral studies. In June of 1933, he along with several other members of the Minnesota History Department received jobs as historical foremen with the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC) in the National Park Service.

Lee was assigned to a CCC camp at Shiloh National Military Park as a historian. In 1934, he transferred to Washington, D.C., to work with the Branch of History of the National Park Service. In 1935, he formed a History Division to conduct State Park CCC work. After the passage of the Historic Sites Act of 1935, he became Assistant to the Chief Historian, Verne Chatelain, and began his lifelong work to preserve historic buildings and structures. Lee himself became Chief Historian in 1938, and continued in that position until 1950. During this time, Lee was involved with the preservation of several historic sites, giving expert direction to the Historic Sites program, and serving as principle liaison to the Advisory Board on National Parks, Historic Sites, Buildings, and Monuments.

During World War II, he served as a staff sergeant in the U.S. Army-Air Force in England assigned as an instructor in the maintenance and operation of the Norden bombsight and the automatic pilot used in bombing raids. He married Jean Prochaska in Denver, Colorado, October 24, 1942. They had no children.

Lee was instrumental in founding the National Trust for Historic Preservation and getting its legislation passed. He was a Trustee Member of the Executive Committee and for many years Secretary of the Board. From 1951 to 1953, he was Assistant Director of the National Park Service and instrumental in developing the National Preservation Program, which anticipated the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966. In 1953 departmental reorganization placed him in charge of a newly created Division of Interpretation. In this capacity he oversaw publications, museums, educational activities, and overall interpretation activities throughout the Park System, and helped plan many facilities under the Mission 66 program. Additionally he was instrumental in the establishment of the National Survey of Historic Sites and Buildings in 1957, which led to the creation of the National Historic Landmarks program.

In 1960, he moved to Philadelphia to become Regional Director of the Northeast Region. During his tenure he developed his lifelong interest in historic sites and historic preservation by joining several local societies, such as the Historical Society of Pennsylvania and the Philadelphia Society of Preservation of Landmarks. He also became interested in preservation of urban areas, seashores, and lakeshores through his involvement with groups such as the Wilderness Society and Philadelphia Conservationist.

Lee retired in 1966 and became a consultant to the NPS, devoting himself to writing. The Family Tree of the National Park System was published in 1972 just before his death. Previously written by Lee, "United State Historical and Architectural Monuments” (1951) became the official history of the Federal government’s historic preservation efforts. Additional publications at this time include “1872-2000: Public Use of the National Park System” (1968) and “The Antiquities Act of 1906” (1970). Lee also served a columnist for “History News”, the main publication of the American Association for State and Local History (AASLH) from 1966 to 1971. “Origin and Evolution of the National Military Park Idea” published posthumously in 1971.

Lee was a member many organizations including: AASLH, the International Council on Monuments and Sites, National Park Association, Society of Architectural Historians, Wilderness Society, Historical Society of Pennsylvania, Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, Philadelphia Conservationist, Philadelphia Society of Preservation of Landmarks, Philadelphia Art Alliance, The Athenaeum of Philadelphia, Philadelphia Art Museum, Museum of Modern Art of New York City, Phi Beta Kappa, Delta Sigma Rho, American Legion, Air Force Association, American Veterans Committee, the Print Club of Philadelphia, the Century Association of New York City, and the Cosmos Club of Washington, D.C.

He was chairman of a special committee on historic preservation of the National Park Service, 1966 to 1971, and a member of its Legislative Task Force during 1961 to 1970. In 1947, he served as the U.S. representative to the committee of experts on monuments of art and history, UNESCO at Paris, France. Lee served at various times as a trustee of the American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society and the Theodore Roosevelt Association; a member of the Council of the American Association of Museums; the American Planning and Civic Association and the Historic Savannah Foundation; a member of the advisory committee of the Hagley-Eleutherian Mills Foundation; and secretary of the Old Christ Church Preservation Trust Fund.

The American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society awarded Lee the Cornelius Amory Pugsley Medal in 1952 for his accomplishments in the field of conservation and the George McAneny Medal in 1961 for his leadership in the field of historic sites preservation.

Organized into eight sub-subseries: Sub-subseries 1: Conferences and Committees; Sub-subseries 2: Correspondence; Sub-subseries 3: National Park Service; Sub-subseries 4: Organizations; Sub-subseries 5: Personal Papers; Sub-subseries 6: Publications; Sub-subseries 7: Reference; and Sub-subseries 8: Speeches.

This subseries contains the working files of Ronald F. Lee. The records include items generated for the park service and the numerous historic preservation organizations and committees which Lee was involved in, such as the National Trust for Historic Preservation, American Scenic and Historic Preservation, and National Survey of Historic Sites and Buildings. Record groups include conferences and committees, correspondence, NPS materials, organizations, personal papers, publications, reference materials, and speeches.

1. SUB-SUBSERIES 1: CONFERENCES AND COMMITTEES, 1962-1972, UNDATED

Arranged alphabetically by name.

Contains reports, memos, notes, and minutes of committees Lee was involved or interested in such as the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation, National Park Service and Historic Preservation Committee, and Special Committee on Historic Preservation. Agendas, notes, and speeches are contained for those conferences which Lee attended or spoke at such as the Conference on Natural Beauty and Historic Preservation Conference.

2. SUB-SUBSERIES 2: CORRESPONDENCE, 1947-1972, UNDATED

Arranged alphabetically by person or subject.

Contains correspondence between Lee and other NPS employees, organizations, and letters grouped by topic.

3. SUB-SUBSERIES 3: NATIONAL PARK SERVICE, 1906-1981, UNDATED

Arranged alphabetically by subject, which includes general NPS, NPS Areas, and NPS Memorials and Monuments records.

Contains records of preservation and historical activities for the Northeastern region and specific parks and monuments. Records include memos, guidelines, correspondence, ordinances, plans and drafts, charts and inventories, brochures, announcements, photographs, slides, and photocopies of legislation.

4. SUB-SUBSERIES 4: ORGANIZATIONS, 1931-1972, UNDATED

Arranged alphabetically by name.

Contains agendas, minutes, newsletters, correspondence, announcements, awards, invitations, reports, legislation, and pamphlets of organizations which Lee was a member of or had a close relationship with, such as American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society, National Trust for Historic Preservation, Philadelphia Society for the Preservation of Landmarks, and UNESCO.

5. SUB-SUBSERIES 5: PERSONAL PAPERS, 1933-1976, UNDATED

Arranged alphabetically by subject.

Contains personal correspondence, notes, photographs, and slides. Also contains actions, correspondence, awards, and information from Lee's personnel file.

6. SUB-SUBSERIES 6: PUBLICATIONS, 1906-1972, UNDATED

Arranged alphabetically by subject.

Contains drafts, correspondence, research notes, and comments on Lee's publications including the "NPS Family Tree."

7. SUB-SUBSERIES 7: REFERENCE, 1879-1972, UNDATED

Arranged alphabetically by subject.

Contains publications, legislation, news clippings, and pamphlets on NPS sites, federal acts such as the Antiquities Act of 1906, and historical research published by others used by Lee in professional activities and publications.

8. SUB-SUBSERIES 8: SPEECHES, 1947-1966, UNDATED

Arranged alphabetically by subject.

Contains notes, drafts, references, and comments on speeches that Lee gave at a variety of functions. Speech topics include education, guest experience, historical preservation, and park planning.

B. SUBSERIES B: VERA CRAIG WORKING FILES, 1889-1985, UNDATED

Vera B. Craig, a native of Morristown, NJ, started as museum assistant at Morristown National Historical Park in September 1947. Her appointment followed graduation from the local high school and wartime service in the Coast Guard. For ten years her responsibilities there included accessioning, cataloging and caring for the park's large, valuable collection as well as keeping the park's three museums presentable. In 1949 she was chosen a trainee in the first four week NPS Museum Methods Training Course.

Craig was transferred from Morristown in 1956 to prepare the NPS's first historic house furnishing plan for the Andrew Johnson Home at the Andrew Johnson National Historic Site in Tennessee. This plan proved a turning point in the development of furnished structures as effective interpretive media in the parks.

Craig then transferred to a new position as staff curator in the Washington Office in 1957 to provide technical supervision for a new three year Museum program. Her role was crucial in the Service-wide effort to bring museum accession and catalog records up to date in professionally satisfactory form. She completed the museum records section of the Museum Handbook, procured the necessary forms and supplies, and collaborated closely with regional curators, whose positions were set up under this program. She remained on the staff of the Museum Branch and its successor units (Branch of Museum Operations, Division of Museum Services, and Division of Reference Services) until she retired in 1977. During these productive years she continued to lead in the operation of the NPS museum records system. She also set up specimen records for the museum laboratory and acted as registrar. As registrar she provided model catalog records for many park specimens that passed through the laboratory. National Capital Parks, in particular, benefited from her expert help in cataloging White House furnishings.

In the Museum Branch, Craig largely supervised the expanding program of furnishing plans for historic structures. She raised service standards in this area and assisted many parks in carrying out approved plans. She was an active member of the Ford's Theatre refurbishing committee and prepared a succession of excellent plans including those for The House Where Lincoln Died, the Harper House at Harpers Ferry, and the Ford House, Washington's headquarters at Morristown. Craig also managed the contracting of specimen conservation for objects which required facilities or skills not available within the NPS Museum Laboratory. She worked closely, for example, with conservators and the conservation scientist at the Textile Museum in cleaning and mounting historic clothing and flags for the Lincoln Museum.

The National Park Service was honored in 1965 when Craig was selected as one of fifteen U.S. museum professionals to take part in a traveling seminar with colleagues at museum in four Scandinavian countries. After her retirement in 1977, Craig donated to the Harpers Ferry Center Library her valuable collection of books, pamphlets, and pictures relating to American furnishing and decorative arts. Craig died on Christmas Day 1982 following a heart attack.

Arranged alphabetically by park.

This subseries contains the working files of Vera Craig. These records document her work and contributions in recreating historic furnishings for various sites service-wide. Materials include correspondence, furnishing plans & studies, photographs, clippings, and research files.

C. SUBSERIES C: JESSE L. NUSBAUM PAPERS AND WORKING FILES, 1911-1970, UNDATED

Jesse Logan Nusbaum served as the archeologist in the Park Service, specializing in the study of ancient civilizations in the Southwest United States. He was born in Greeley, Colorado, September 3, 1887 to Edward Moore and Agnes Strickland (Moodie) Nusbaum. His parents and maternal grandparents were members of the original Greeley colony organized by Horace Greeley. Nusbaum attended local public schools in Greeley as well as the Colorado Teachers College there, receiving his V. Pedagogy in 1907.

Upon graduation, Nusbaum was hired to teach Science and Manual Arts at the New Mexico State Normal in Las Vegas. The following summer he forged his connection with Mesa Verde as a photographer and archeological assistant to A.V. Kidder. Nusbaum spent the following summer (1908) in a similar fashion.

In June of 1909, Nusbaum became the first employee of the School of American Archeology and Museum of New Mexico, Santa Fe, under Dr. Edgar L. Hewett. While there, he conducted archeological surveys, investigations, excavations, and ruins stabilization in Guatemala, Honduras, Mexico, Colorado, and New Mexico including the Pajarito Plateau. Nusbaum's returned to Mesa Verde for the exaction, repair, and stabilization of Balcony House, and significant renovation/excavation that extended into the winter of 1910. He spent nine months in Washington, D.C., from September 1911 to June 1912, contributing to exhibits for the Panama-California Exposition to be held in 1915 in San Diego, California. His innovations at Mesa Verde and manual arts background served him well during his supervision of the restoration of the New Mexico Palace of Governors in Santa Fe, which was completed in the fall of 1913. Also in 1913, Nusbaum worked for three months in the Maya ruins of Yucatan, with Dr. S. G. Morley, and helped restore the Pecos Mission Church. He later used some of its design in the work of the New Mexico state art museum, built in 1916-1919 under his supervision.

Nusbaum aspired to be an aviator during World War I but instead chose to be an engineer and served in France. He enlisted in May 1918 and was discharged April 1919. From 1919 to 1921, he was employed at the Museum of the American Indian, Heye Foundation in New York City. While Nusbaum was working in New York he conducted several southwest expeditions, to such sites as Hawikuh Pueblo and Basketmaker Cave.

In 1921, while still in New York, he was selected by NPS Director Stephen Mather and Assistant Director Arno Cammerer to become superintendent at Mesa Verde National Park. Mather was disappointed by the conditions that had developed there under Nusbaum's predecessor. Although he encountered resistance with several Colorado politicians, Nusbaum was able to become an effective superintendent, advancing the development of the park. He discontinued grazing, built a museum and developed interpretive programs, especially ones designed to explain the Antiquities Act. His involvement with the Act led to his designation in 1927 as the lead archeologist and prime enforcer of the Act for the Southwest while still remaining Mesa Verde superintendent.

Nusbaum continued in this dual capacity until 1930, when he took a leave of absence to organize and direct the Laboratory of Anthropology at Santa Fe, New Mexico. He remained director of the laboratory until 1935, having earlier returned to the Park Service and resumed his duties as Mesa Verde superintendent and archeologist, enforcing the Antiquities Act. In the late 1940's he left Mesa Verde for Santa Fe and increased duties as the senior archeologist of the National Park Service. In this capacity, Nusbaum began one of the first salvage archeology projects when he persuaded El Paso Natural Gas Company to allow archeological excavation along their pipelines. For this and many other accomplishments, Jesse L. Nusbaum received the Distinguished Service Award from the Department of the Interior in 1954. After a year's extension, Nusbaum took mandatory retirement from the National Park Service in 1957 at the age of seventy-one. However, he continued to do consulting work for many years. He passed away in Santa Fe in December 1975, at the age of eighty-eight.

Nusbaum married Aileen Baehrens O'Bryan on September 21, 1920, but was divorced in 1939. The couple had one son, Deric. Nusbaum subsequently married Rosemary Lewis Rife, a nurse, on December 11, 1947. His civic associations were as follows: trustee, Laboratory of Anthropology 1923-1938; member, Advisory Board 1927; State Park Commission of New Mexico 1933-1936; council, American Association of Museums 1932-1935; trustee, Indian Arts Fund 1927; commission, Old Santa Fe Association 1946-1975; management board, School of American Research, 1947; U.S. International Park and Forest Commission; honorary life member, Museum of New Mexico; Pi Gamma Mu; fellow, American Association for the Advancement of Science; and chairman, Social Sciences, Southwest Division 1932-1933 as well as Vice President 1935 of the American Anthropological Association; Society for American Archeology; and American Planning and Civic Association. Nusbaum received an honorary doctorate from Colorado State in 1946.

Nusbaum was listed in Who's Who in American from 1931 until 1960 and was also included in Directory of American Scholars and American Men of Science.

Arranged alphabetically by subject.

This subseries contains the working files of archeologist Jesse Nusbaum. These records document his archeological contributions as well as his work as superintendent of Mesa Verde National Park. Materials include correspondence, reports, research files, clippings, and personal papers.

D. SUBSERIES D: HAROLD L. PETERSON PAPERS AND WORKING FILES, 1933-1979, UNDATED

Harold Leslie Peterson was the Chief Curator of the National Park Service and a noted arms scholar. He was born May 22, 1922, to Leslie Chauncey and Mildred (Croft) Peterson in Peekskill, New York. After education in local schools, Peterson received his BA magna cum laude from Drew University, New Jersey, in 1945 and married Dorothy Parker. They had two children, Harold L., Jr., and Kristin Dorothy. Peterson worked for the Wisconsin Historical Society in 1946 while working on his Master of Arts from the University of Wisconsin. Upon graduation in 1947, Peterson went to work for the National Park Service as a historian and stayed until his death on January 1, 1978.

Peterson moved from historian to curator back to historian with the History Division, on a recommendation by Chief Historian Ronald Lee. He remained with the History Division for sixteen years, establishing and fostering cooperation between the curatorial and historical staff and dramatically increasing the number of historical objects and specimens the division held. In 1964 he became Chief Curator of the National Park Service and his primary duties related to historical acquisition and authentication. That year he was also appointed to the Museum Study Team organized by Director George Hartzog to alter museum organization and practice. He also was instrumental in advising on historical military reconstructions and displays for the Bicentennial.

Peterson was an expert on arms and armor and consulted outside of his work with the Park Service. He belonged to several professional organizations and received numerous awards and honors. Peterson served as advisor to such organizations as Colonial Williamsburg, Plymouth Plantation, Henry Ford Museum, and the West Point Museum. He served as president of the Company of Military Historians from 1960 to 1963 and held office in the International Association of Museums of Arms and Military History, the Company of Military Historians, and the Washington Regional Conservation Guild. Peterson served several terms as chairman of the board of directors for the Eastern National Park and Monuments Association.

He authored hundreds of magazine articles and twenty-three books on arms and armor, military and social history. Four of these books were written specifically for children. Peterson served on the editorial staff of a number of professional publications as well and lectured at the Williamsburg Antiques Forum, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the New York Historical Society, and many other institutions. He was also interested in and played military music, some of which was recorded.

Peterson carried on a long battle with illness and disease and passed away in 1978. He was an inveterate collector of arms, armor, and antiques in general. Peterson's expertise and qualities as a historical scholar were widely recognized. He received the United States Department of the Interior Distinguished Service Medal in 1958 for outstanding contributions in the fields of historical research and museum planning. Many of his works are catalogued in the Harpers Ferry Center library.

Organized into nine sub-subseries: Sub-subseries 1: Associations; Sub-subseries 2: Correspondence; Sub-subseries 3: Historical Evaluation and Research Organization; Sub-subseries 4: Manuscripts; Sub-subseries 5: Parks and Areas; Sub-subseries 6: Personal;

Sub-subseries 7: Photographs; Sub-subseries 8: Reading and Daily Sections; and Sub-subseries 9: Reference.

This subseries contains the working files of Harold L. Peterson. The records include files generated for the National Park Service as well as non-federal associations that Peterson was involved with, including regional gun associations. Photographs of weaponry, uniforms, and other military-associated materials are included from both Peterson's personal collection and objects he consulted on.

1. SUB-SUBSERIES 1: ASSOCIATIONS, 1955-1977, UNDATED

Arranged alphabetically by name.

Peterson was involved with a number of NPS and non-profit historical associations, including the Eastern National Park and Monument Association. He provided these groups with historical knowledge and consulted on the preservation of furniture, weapons, and a variety of other archeological objects. Files contain reports, memos, notes, newsletters, correspondence, and publications.

2. SUB-SUBSERIES 2: CORRESPONDENCE, 1948-1977, UNDATED

Arranged alphabetically by subject.

Contains correspondence of Peterson, primarily asking for historical expertise and consultation. Topics include arms and armor, the National Bicentennial, weapon inquiries, and administrative matters.

3. SUB-SUBSERIES 3: HISTORICAL EVALUATION AND RESEARCH ORGANIZATION, 1965, UNDATED

Arranged alphabetically by title of reports.

Reports of the Historical Evaluation and Research Organization, kept and arranged by Peterson for use in an unidentified publication.

4. SUB-SUBSERIES 4: MANUSCRIPTS, 1969-1975, UNDATED

Arranged alphabetically by title.

Contains bibliographic notes, drafts, and edited copies of several of Peterson's major publications, including "How Do You Know It's Old?" and "Interiors: Americans at Home."

5. SUB-SUBSERIES 5: PARKS AND AREAS, 1935-1977, UNDATED

Arranged alphabetically by location.

History research notes for specific parks, exhibit planning information, correspondence, and photographs created and used by Peterson while serving as Chief Curator of the National Park System.

6. SUB-SUBSERIES 6: PERSONAL, 1947-1979, UNDATED

Arranged alphabetically by subject.

Files contain personal correspondence, lecture notes, photographs, and slides. Also included are non-confidential actions, awards, and general information from Peterson's personnel file.

7. SUB-SUBSERIES 7: PHOTOGRAPHS, 1944-1976, UNDATED

Arranged alphabetically by subject.

Contains images of weapons, uniforms, military items, and other historical objects. A majority of the photographs were used in Peterson's publications and are cropped and/or captioned. Interfiled textual material consists of correspondence and other documents containing general information about the depicted subjects.

8. SUB-SUBSERIES 8: READING AND DAILY SECTION, 1968-1977

Arranged chronologically.

Articles, press releases, and memos compiled by Peterson on history, weapons, and furniture.

9. SUB-SUBSERIES 9: REFERENCE, 1933-1977, UNDATED

Arranged alphabetically by subject.

Newsletters, brochures, articles, reports, and other documents primarily on military history compiled and used by Peterson for his daily work.

E. SUBSERIES E. VERNE E. CHATELAIN PAPERS AND WORKING FILES, 1919-1950, UNDATED

Verne Elmo Chatelain was born in Peru, Nebraska in 1895. He married and had two children, Richard and Shirley. He received his masters in history from the University of Chicago after attending Peru State College in Nebraska for his undergraduate studies. He held a law degree from Creighton College in Omaha and was a member of the Nebraska State Bar. He received his doctorate in the history of political science from the University of Minnesota. He also was chairman of the History and Social Sciences Department at Nebraska State Teachers College and Assistant to the Superintendent of the Minnesota State Historical Society before joining the National Park Service.

In 1931 he was hired as Park Historian by Director Albright to oversee the historical program of the NPS under the new Branch of Research and Education. Chatelain supervised the NPS's first two field historians, Floyd Flickinger and Elbert Cox, who were stationed at Colonial National Monument (then referred to as Yorktown) in Virginia. He was a strong proponent for interpreting the history of sites to the public, and advocated for interesting and informative brochures as a public introduction to park sites.

Throughout his career with the NPS, Chatelain strove to achieve academic respect and professionalism in the wider academia for the research, education, and interpretation done by his branch for the NPS. He also actively evaluated the historical potential of new NPS sites and created a set of criteria for site selection. He also advocated for the separation of management of eastern and western parks and fought for more trained historical staff at various park sites. Chatelain was heavily involved with interpretation and preservation work at Wakefield, Morristown, and Colonial National Monument specifically.

Chatelain's work, along with the support of Director Albright, helped to create the new Branch of Historic Sites and Buildings in 1935, which was better able to provide leadership and guidance of the interpretation and educational program for historical and archeological areas. Chatelain served as Acting Assistant Director of the Branch until he resigned in September of 1936.

Towards the end of his NPS career, he consulted with the city of Monterey, California in their plans to develop the historic areas of the city. After leaving the NPS, Chatelain went to work for Remington and Rand as a Research Consultant. He developed a new museum storage case and worked with several non-federal museums. In 1945 he joined the University of Maryland faculty and was active in history department of the Army Education Center in Germany from 1949-1950. He taught history here until retiring in 1965, but continued to lecture frequently on the history of Maryland in the Civil war to local groups. Chatelain died in 1991 in Maryland at the age of ninety-six.

Chatelain belonged to the American Historical Association, Mississippi Valley Historical Association, Nebraska History Teachers Association, and the Minnesota Historical Society. He was a prolific public speaker and wrote several books and articles on historical interpretation and conservation.

Arranged alphabetically by subject.

Records primarily contain the correspondence and working documents of Chatelain in his NPS positions. These include correspondence with park sites, Director Albright, and historical societies as well as numerous handwritten notes referring to potential park sites, staffing issues, and reviews of historical materials. The material also contains the final plan of the Monterey Historic Site development and some correspondence in his later professions. Records include correspondence, reports, notes, plans, abstracts, brochures, and photographs.

F. SUBSERIES F: ROBERT M. UTLEY WORKING FILES, 1932-1978, UNDATED

Robert Marshall Utley was born October 31, 1929 in Bauxite, Arkansas, but grew up in Indiana. He studied at Purdue University where he graduated with a Bachelor of Sciences in history. Utley received his Master of Arts in history from the University of Indiana in 1952. His Master's thesis, entitled "Custer and the Great Controversy: The Origin and Development of a Legend," focused on his interest on the military history of the American West. After graduating from the University of Indiana, Utley joined the Army as a historian working for the Chief of Staff.

While an undergraduate student at Purdue, Utley began his association with the National Park Service in 1947 as a seasonal summer ranger at Custer Battlefield National Monument (now Little Bighorn Battlefield National Monument). In 1957 he returned to the NPS in a permanent position as a historian in the Southwest Region and later served as NPS Chief Historian from 1964-1973. Following a re-organization in 1973, he took over the role of Director of the Office of Archeology and Historic Preservation (OAHP) from Ernest A. Connally.

Department of the Interior order no. 2953 (1973 February 6) outlines Utley's role in the re-organization:

The Division of History, headed by the Service's Chief Historian, Robert M. Utley, provides professional services, judgments, and recommendations on all matters in the field of history with which the NPS is concerned, conducts the Service's historical research program and the National Survey of Historic Sites and Buildings, and supports as needed the National Register, grants-in-aid, and Advisory Council programs conducted under the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966.

Utley also held the titles of Assistant Director of Park Historic Preservation and Chief of the Cultural Resources Management Division before his 1980 retirement from the park service. That same year, he married Melody Webb, herself an NPS historian. After leaving the park service, he moved on to Yale University, where he was the Frederick W.

and Carrie S. Beinecke Senior Research Fellow in Western and Frontier History. During his career, Utley received numerous acknowledgements for his work including two honorary doctorate degrees, six Outstanding Performance Awards, and the Department of the Interior Distinguished Service Award. He was also the recipient of the Wrangler Award, a Spur Award, and the Western History Association's Caughey Prize. The Western History Association has named the annual Robert M. Utley Book Award in his honor.

Since his retirement, he continued to write histories about the American Frontier. Specific subjects include Billy the Kid, the Indian wars, the Texas Rangers, mountain men, and Sitting Bull. His memoirs, entitled "Custer and Me," which focused largely on his years with NPS, appeared in 2004. As of 2013, he and his wife lived in Scottsdale, Arizona.

Arranged alphabetically by subject.

This subseries contains materials Robert Utley sent to Barry Mackintosh (NPS Bureau Historian, 1965-1999) for reference when writing a history of the NPS's response to National Historic Preservation Act of 1966. Reference copies of the Act as well as Utley's report entitled "Cultural Preservation in Japan, Some Lessons for America" are included. Files contain information regarding historic structures preservation management within the NPS, as well as the development and organizational management of relevant administrative bodies, such as the Office of Archeology and Historic Preservation. Materials include reports, memoranda, clippings, and correspondence. Records of Utley's professional collaboration and personal correspondence with Ernest A. Connally can be found in Subseries G: Ernest A. Connally Papers and Working Files, 1934-1992, undated.

G. SUBSERIES G. ERNEST A. CONNALLY PAPERS AND WORKING FILES, 1934-1992, UNDATED (bulk dates: 1963-1990)

Ernest Allan Connally had a long and distinguished career in the field of historic preservation, holding influential positions within academia, the federal government, and international committees. He was born in Groesbeck, Texas, on November 15, 1921. He had an early interest in architecture and attended Rice University (1939-1940) and the University of Texas at Austin (UT-Austin) (1940-1942) as an undergraduate. His studies were interrupted by World War II while he served as major in the United States Army Air Force (1942-1946). After this he travelled for a year in Europe, and studied for one summer at University of Florence (1947). He would graduate from UT-Austin in 1950 with a Bachelor of Architecture degree. He attended graduate school at Harvard, and received MA (1952) and PhD (1955) degrees in History and Principles of the Fine Arts, specializing in the History and Principles of Architecture. At Harvard, he met Janice Muriel Wegner. They were married August 28, 1951 and had two children: Marry Allen and John Arnold.

His academic career as a professor of architecture lasted fifteen years and included time as assistant professor at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, (1952-1955); associate professor at Washington University, St. Louis, (1955-1957, returning as a visiting professor, 1962); and at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, where he was associate professor (1957-1961), and associate member of the Center for Advanced Study, (1961-1967). He was a Fulbright lecturer at the University of Melbourne, Australia (1963). He published books and academic articles. He directed several projects for the Historic American Buildings Survey (HABS); planned the restoration of the President Andrew Johnson Home in Greeneville, Tennessee; directed the restoration of a prime example of French colonial architecture, the eighteenth-century Louis Bolduc House in Ste. Genevieve, Missouri; and served as a consultant on other restorations and on various public panels.

Connally's association with the National Park Service began in 1952 when he did work as a member of a documentary recording team for HABS at Independence National Historical Park in Philadelphia, PA. He did further work of this kind at the Andrew Johnson House in Greenville, TN (1956), the Custom House in Salem, MA (1958), and at Cape Cod (1962). This brought him in contact with prominent park service professional Ronald F. Lee, who was a consultant on the Rains Committee, which produced the 1966 report "With Heritage So Rich," which was influential on the passage of the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966, during the Johnson administration.

In 1967, on the recommendation of Lee and archeologist J.O. Brew, Connally was appointed to the initial NPS special committee on historic preservation by NPS director George B. Hartzog, Jr. At the committee's recommendation, Hartzog created the Office of Archeology and Historic Preservation (OAHP), which would unify disparate preservation efforts at a high level within the NPS, with Connally as head. Connally's work for the OAHP involved coordination with the HABS, the National Trust for Historic Preservation, and the newly-established National Register of Historic Places. The act also established the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation with an NPS officer as executive director. In 1976, the Council was reconstituted as an independent federal agency.

In 1971, the OAHP was moved down within the organizational structure of the park service, reporting to the associate director for professional services. In 1972, Connally was promoted to hold this office and Robert Utley was named director of OAHP. In 1972, Hartzog was replaced by Roland Walker, to whom Connally proposed a scheme calling for the separation of the OAHP from the NPS. Connally struggled to realize implementation of this plan throughout the mid-seventies.

During the Carter administration, the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation was redefined as the Heritage Conservation and Recreation Service (HCRS), and the OAHP was subsumed under this new service in 1978. The transition was not smooth and proved to be detrimental to the preservation goals of Connally and others. Connally stayed on as associate director at HCRS, but lack of support from HCRS director Chris T. Delaporte led Connally to relinquish his associate directorship (1979) and to focus on his role as Secretary-General to the International Council on Monuments and Sites (ICOMOS), a position which he had held from 1975, and would retain until 1981. The OAHP was dismantled in September of 1979. Delaporte came under heavy criticism from many preservationists, including the National Conference of State Historic Preservation Officers. With the change in administration in 1981, James G. Watt became new Secretary of the Interior and abolished the HCRS, restoring preservation functions to the NPS. Connally would return to the park service in 1982 as Chief Appeals Officer, responsible for final decisions regarding certification of historic structures for tax purposes. He retired in 1992.

Connally's prominence as a preservationist extended beyond his role as NPS associate director. He was deeply involved in many professional organizations both domestically and internationally. He was the US delegate to the UNESCO conference on cultural property (1968); a UNESCO consultant to the government of Nepal (1968) and to the government of Thailand (1982); the US representative to the International Conference on Recording Historic Monuments in Prague, Czechoslovakia (1969); and secretary-treasurer to the US committee of the International Council on Monuments and Sites (US-ICOMOS) (1969-73). He served on the editorial board of "Momentum," the ICOMOS publication (1967-1975), and was later chairman (1973-75), and secretary-general (1975-1981). He was US delegate to the International Centre for Study of Preservation of Cultural Property (ICCRUM) in Rome (1971-1977). He was a member of the US-USSR Joint Working Group on the Urban Environment (1973-1981).

Connally was the recipient of many awards: a research award from the American Philosophical Society (1957), a distinguished service award from the Department of the Interior (1978), the Louise DuPont Crowninshield Award from the National Trust for Historic Preservation (1980), and was named a membre d'Honneur of ICOMOS (1981).

Connally maintained strong ties throughout the profession. His memberships included: the College Art Association, the American Society of Architectural Historians, the American Institute of Architects, Colegio de Arquitectos (Puebla, Mexico), the Association for Preservation Technology, the National Trust for Historic Preservation, The Victorian Society in America, the American Association of State and Local History, the Gargoyle Architecture Honor Society, Alpha Rho Chi, Tau Sigma Delta, Phi Kappa Phi, and the Cosmos Club (Washington, DC).

Organized into seven sub-subseries: Sub-subseries 1: Correspondence; Sub-subseries 2: International Centre for the Study of the Preservation and Restoration of Cultural Property (ICCROM); Sub-subseries 3: Interviews; Sub-subseries 4: Legislation and Policy; Sub-subseries 5: NPS Organization; Sub-subseries 6: Professional Engagements; and Sub-subseries 7: Reports.

This subseries contains the working files of Ernest A. Connally. The records include items generated for the park service and historic preservation organizations and committees which Connally was involved in, such as the National Trust for Historic Preservation and the International Council on Monuments and Sites (ICOMOS), as well as correspondence with a wide variety of professional, philanthropic, and academic historic preservation groups. Records include reports, plans, legal reference material, published literature, meeting minutes, notes, brochures, photographs, audio cassettes, newspaper clippings, letters, interview transcriptions, and photographic postcards.

Arranged alphabetically by subject.

Contains external correspondence of Connally, both personal and professional in nature. Connally maintained working relationships with a wide variety of organizations and individuals within the broad professional field of historic preservation, both domestic and international. Also included are recommendation letters for junior students and professionals, personal correspondence with colleague Ronald F. Lee after Lee's retirement, and with Connally's alma mater, UT-Austin.

2. SUB-SUBSERIES 2. INTERNATIONAL CENTRE FOR THE STUDY OF THE PRESERVATION AND RESTORATION OF CULTURAL PROPERTY (ICCROM), 1963-1981, UNDATED

Arranged alphabetically by subject.

Contains records generated for the International Centre for the Study of the Preservation and Restoration of Cultural Property (ICCROM), an organization to which Connally was influential as the US delegate. Items consist of correspondence, meeting minutes, proceedings, and notes.

3. SUB-SUBSERIES 3. INTERVIEWS, 1980-1986

Arranged alphabetically by subject.

Contains transcripts of oral histories and extended interviews conducted with three interviewers: historian Charles Hosner, PhD student James A. Glass, and NPS officer Boyd Evison. Topics include Connally's personal history, the development of the field of historic preservation in general, and the establishment and development of historic preservation offices and activities within the National Park Service and other administrative bodies.

4. SUB-SUBSERIES 4. LEGISLATION AND POLICY, 1966-1989, UNDATED

Arranged alphabetically by subject.

Contains internal correspondence, memoranda, reports, plans, and reference material on acts of Congress and Presidential directives related to historic preservation, organizational funding, and policy for administration of official archeological and historic programs. Topics include the National Historic Preservation Act, Bicentennial Land Heritage Act, The Comprehensive Preservation Act, the Land Resource Management Act, the National Environmental Policy Act, the National Heritage Policy Act, the Olmsted Heritage Landscapes Act, among others.

5. SUB-SUBSERIES 5. NPS ORGANIZATION, 1934-1991, UNDATED

Arranged alphabetically by subject.

Contains internal correspondence, memoranda, reports, plans, and reference material on establishment, organization, staffing, development, and multiple re-organizations of historic preservation offices within the NPS and the Department of the Interior. Records span the establishment of the OAHP, the proposed re-configurations during the mid-1970s, the creation of the HCRS during the Carter administration, as well as NPS Washington Office re-organizations in 1973 and 1978.

6. SUB-SUBSERIES 6. PROFESSIONAL ENGAGEMENTS, 1968-1991, UNDATED

Arranged alphabetically by subject.

Records contain correspondence, notes, brochures, invitations, and prepared material for speeches related to Connally's busy schedule as a public speaker and attendee at professional and social events related to historic preservation.

7. SUB-SUBSERIES 7. REPORTS, 1968-1991, UNDATED

Arranged alphabetically by subject.

Reports, studies, and publications collected as reference material. The bulk of the material originated within the park service. Two items, "1980 Threats of the Park Survey, Air Quality Threats as Reported by Park," and "Threat Information Management System, Detail List of Threats by Park" are large-format printouts of databases listing service-wide management details. Also included are a dissertation by PhD student James A. Glass, whose interview with Connally is in sub-subseries 3: Interviews; reports by park service historian Barry Mackintosh; and reports by Ronald F. Lee, whose papers and working files can be found in subseries A.
