History

Nineteenth Century Origins

Mary Prout, an African American educator and activist, founded the Independent Order of St. Luke (IOSL), a fraternal organization, as a women's mutual insurance society in Baltimore in 1867. With a purpose to provide death benefits and sick pay for Christian dues-paying members, the Order welcomed "Negro persons of good moral character" to assist one another and promote racial improvement through membership in local councils. Emphasizing thrift, community, and self-reliance, members gained leadership skills.

Groups in Virginia, New York, and other states broke away from the original Baltimore group, still calling themselves the Independent Order of St. Luke. William M. T. Forrester served as Secretary of the Virginia group from 1869 to 1899.

In Richmond, Virginia, Maggie Lena Mitchell (later Walker) (1864-1934) joined the Good Idea Council of the Order at the age of 16 in 1881. She attended school, earned a teaching credential, and began teaching in 1883. She found peers with common goals and purposes among other educated Black Richmonders, including educators, attorneys, and newspaper editors. Her women friends from this group became lifelong colleagues in a number of shared enterprises. In 1886 she left her teaching position to marry Armstead Walker, Jr. and quickly progressed through various offices and degrees of the Order. She led a local council by 1889 and held increasingly senior leadership positions. She bore three children, all sons, in 1890, 1893 and 1897, two of whom survived to adulthood.

In 1895 she recruited other educated friends to help formalize a Juvenile Department for young people ages 2-16, emphasizing thrift, health, education, and caring for others. In 1897 she served as Secretary of the Endowment (the IOSL insurance program) and from 1891 to 1898 also served as both an organizing deputy with collection agent responsibilities and lecturer for the Order.

The New York and Virginia Councils joined forces to create a National Grand Council from 1895 until 1902 after which the Right Worthy Grand Council (RWGC) in Richmond revised the charter and led the national organization from the Richmond office.

Turn of the Century

By 1899, under long-time leader William M. T. Forrester, the Order lost members and faced financial and management crises. Upon election as Right Worthy Grand Secretary, Maggie Lena Walker quickly reorganized the Order, streamlining spending and operations. As membership increased and the Order gained financial stability, she promoted employment, development of leadership and management skills, and entrepreneurial projects for the African American community. She had a particular interest in the plight of Black women under oppressive Jim Crow laws and sought to provide business opportunities for women seeking more than menial jobs.

On August 20, 1901, Maggie Lena Walker delivered a speech outlining her vision of creating a newspaper, bank, and department store as a collective strategy for employment generation and Jim Crow resistance.

“...brothers and sisters, let us awake. Let us have a bank that will take the nickels and turn them into dollars. ...

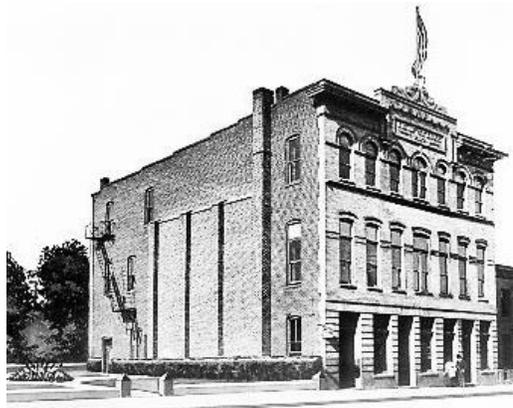

Who is so helpless as the Negro woman? Who is so circumscribed and hemmed in, in the race of life, in the struggle for bread, meat and clothing as the Negro woman? ... Can't this great Order, in which there are so many good women, willing women, hard-working women, noble women, whose money is here, whose interests are here, whose hearts and souls are here, do something towards giving employment to those who have made it what it is?

What we need is an organ, a newspaper to herald and proclaim the work of our order. No business, no enterprise, which has to deal with the public, can be pushed successfully without a newspaper, a trumpet to sound the orders, so that the St. Luke upon the mountain top, and the St. Luke dwelling by the side of the sea, can hear the same order, keep step to the same music, march in unison to the same command, although miles and miles intervene.”

Maggie L. Walker in 1901 Report to Convention¹

The St. Luke Herald began publication in 1902; the St. Luke Penny Savings Bank opened in November 1903; and the St. Luke Emporium, a department store, operated from 1905 until 1911. All IOSL members were required to participate in the Order's insurance endowment program. The IOSL expanded geographically to Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and Washington, D.C.

In 1903, St. Luke Association, an incorporated joint stock company chartered in 1898 by several local councils, purchased property, and erected a three-story building in Richmond to rent to the IOSL as its headquarters and provide meeting space to local councils.

To protect the endowment (or “insure the insurance”), the IOSL created an Emergency Fund to compensate for any undercapitalization. In 1908, the state insurance commission inspected the IOSL and recommended that it buy the building from the stock association, divest the bank, and avoid capitalizing other businesses. The IOSL followed these directives, performed monthly audits, and developed a new bookkeeping system to better adhere to actuarial standards.

Walker started a regalia and supply department to provide materials for the subordinate councils as they conducted rituals and conferred degrees (allegorical steps) of the order. Councils could purchase ritual books, membership rosters, streamers, collars, scarves, “initiation robes and faces,” and rosettes for juvenile members. Subordinate councils conducted opening and closing exercises and installations using the ritual books published by the RWGC to formally initiate new members and support them in achieving up to 9 degrees of membership. The degree ceremonies reflected IOSL teachings and Christian principles through symbols, allegory, and drama.

Segregation steadily eroded the rights of African Americans as regressive “Jim Crow” laws imposed race-based literacy tests and restricted travel on local trolleys and ferries as well as access to employment and schooling. The 1894 Walton Act restricted voting rights, and in 1906 the Commonwealth of Virginia enforced transit segregation by law. In a 1906 speech, Walker exhorted her audience:

“And yet with the loss of citizenship, ‘jim-crowed,’ shortening of our school term, the destroying of Negro business enterprises, the refusal of employment to Negroes, the attempt to drive out the Negro barbers, and Negroes from every other occupation, with hostile legislation on the increase – there are some who still believe that we should look to the Lord and keep our mouths shut...”

SOMEBODY MUST SPEAK. SOMEBODY MUST CRY ALOUD. The afflictions and persecutions of our people MUST be told. WE MUST GET TOGETHER AND REASON TOGETHER. SOMEBODY MUST CRY ALOUD.”

In 1917 the IOSL convention voted to build a new headquarters, but in the end the building was renovated, and a fourth story added, possibly due to wartime shortages. Inflation raised concerns about the solidity of the Class A endowment ($100 policies) which most members held. While Class B ($300) and Class C ($500) policies were available, few members switched from the original Class A policy.

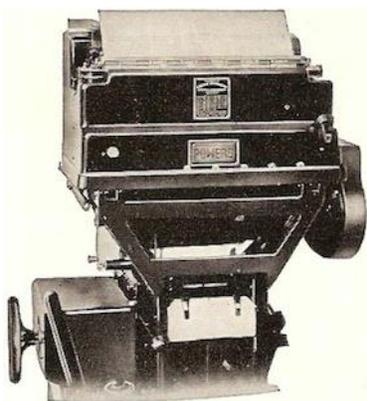

Always seeking positive innovations, Maggie Lena Walker implemented an internal cross-checking and auditing system to increase accuracy after viewing such a system at another company. She also increased efforts to switch juvenile members to the adult plan at age 15 and to retain juvenile members through appealing programming.

Early Mid-Twentieth Century

During the early 1920s, the St. Luke Herald had 6,000 subscribers and the Field Department (the sales force) grew to 39 full- and part-time deputies by 1925. Increasing concerns about eventual Class A solvency led to adoption of a new plan that called for no new Class A certificates to be issued after 1929, although existing ones continued to be honored. An actuary hired to modernize insurance practices encouraged the IOSL to implement a Legal Reserve insurance program (LR) as well as continue to maintain scrupulous accounts and expand the membership. The Order issued Legal Reserve rate tables and began to require medical exams for applicants. Legal Reserve funds were kept separate from all other funds and were required to maintain a reserve of 10% of outstanding liabilities with any surplus distributed as a dividend. Class A, B, or C members could transfer in but were required to pay age-related premiums.

By 1927, Walker began raising money for an Educational Loan Fund to support families with higher education costs. She hoped to raise $10,000 to invest in securities that would grow over time and provide revolving loans to students in good standing without depleting the principal. As many subordinate councils of the IOSL were struggling financially, the fund grew very slowly for the first decade.

In 1929, Walker sought increased administrative efficiency through a rented Powers tabulating system. This innovation provided a way to send up-to-date statements to each subordinate council showing what members owed and to quickly provide feedback to field staff as to where their efforts were most needed.

Fraternal Societies' Influence Declines

The Great Depression forced the African American banks in Richmond to merge in order to survive, and the IOSL had to drastically cut expenses and staff as numerous policies lapsed for nonpayment. By 1933, Class A policies were no longer sustainable and new subscribers were required to join the Legal Reserve Fund, although previously existing Class A policies were honored. Maggie Lena Walker's health declined, leading to her death on December 15, 1934, and the organization struggled as they faced the loss of their long-time charismatic leader.

For a year after Walker's death, Lillian S. Bazley (1892-1936) led the IOSL, after which Walker's daughter-in-law, Hattie N.F. Walker, assumed the role of Right Worthy Grand Secretary. Both Bazley and the younger Walker had worked closely with Maggie Lena Walker in all phases of the IOSL administration and ably led the organization as the country recovered from the Great Depression, although membership figures never again approached those of the 1920s.

After Walker's death, the IOSL was slow to implement the Educational Loan Fund program, finally offering loans by 1938 as investments began to stabilize. Member families' applicants received and repaid $200-300 college tuition loans through the fund, a significant amount during the 1940s and 1950s. In 1959 as government-sponsored student loans became more readily available, the Educational Loan Fund became a scholarship granting program.

Hattie Walker led the IOSL until retiring in 1957. As the country faced the upheavals of the 1960s with new opportunities and causes, many fraternal organizations struggled to maintain market share in the insurance business. Veterans' benefits provided education and housing assistance for many families while government programs including Social Security and Medicare addressed many of the traditional IOSL causes related to housing, education, disability, and employment. The organization faced a decline in numbers, moving out of St. Luke Hall in 1980. Following a court order, the IOSL went into receivership by 1988 under the State Corporation Commission's Bureau of Insurance. A staff of Deputy Receivers spent a decade and a half trying to find and then pay any entitled policy holders or beneficiaries. Finally, in the early 2000s, the Deputy Receivers donated any remaining cash from the IOSL's insurance assets to Virginia Union University to seed a scholarship program in Maggie L. Walker's name.

Provenance

Several accessions including 6, 22, 23, 24, 25 and 26 came to the National Park Service during the 1980s as the Independent Order of St. Luke went into receivership. Accessions 6 and 22 came from former IOSL employees while accessions 23-26 came from the Deputy Receiver at the Virginia Bureau of Insurance. Accession 100 came to the National Park Service in 2020 from Margaret Stallings, whose late husband, James Stallings, bought the St. Luke's office building in 1971. In 2009, students of Professor Heather Huyck at the College of William & Mary uncovered these records in the St. Luke Hall, and with the Stallings' permission, took the papers to the college for an ambitious processing and digitization project with a promise to then deliver to MAWA after one year. As her position at William & Mary diminished, Dr. Huyck established the Maggie L. Walker Community of Williamsburg, VA. This passionate group of retired women continued the volunteer processing project, first at the university before working out of a new base at Colonial Williamsburg until 2017. After a thorough fair market value assessment by accredited appraiser, Wyatt Houston Day, the Stallings were able to finally follow-through on their 2009 pledge to donate their collection to the National Park Service. For more information on the provenance of Accession 100, see the Maggie L. Walker Family Papers – Introduction. Accession 107, the Sydnor Donation, also came to the park in 2020, more than three decades after the IOSL members loaned a selection of records to documentary filmmaker, William Sydnor, with the stated intention that the records would come to MAWA after the film's completion.

Series Descriptions

Series I: Administration, 1897-1967

The Administration series contains legal and foundational records, significant reports, conference proceedings, correspondence, and financial records as well as General Administrative files, including histories and biographical overviews. The series is organized into 5 subseries:

- The Legal Records subseries contains two revised constitutions of the Independent Order of St. Luke (IOSL) and correspondence between Maggie Lena Walker and the RWGC's attorney, J. Thomas Hewin about various legal matters.
- In the Reports and Proceedings subseries, the Convention Proceedings do not include all years but provide important detail over time of changes in the organization, especially in the Journals of Proceedings and the Annual Reports.
- The Correspondence subseries contains a large set of the organization's letters. The earlier folders feature a small set of correspondence grouped together from earlier accessions, while the latter from the Stallings donation feature the bulk of RWGC administrative correspondence in the collection. The letters include detailed communications between Maggie Lena Walker and the RWGC leadership, the Order's subcouncils across the United States, vendors for regalia, letters with other fraternal orders, and various circular letters.
- The General Files subseries contains administrative memos, biographical overviews, documents describing IOSL's participation in community and national events, and some early 20th century reports and agendas. Significant subgroups include files relating to the building, clippings, convention planning documents, fraternalism, organizational histories, rituals and regalia of the organization, and extensive correspondence regarding naming a Liberty Ship for Maggie L. Walker.
- The Financial Records subseries contains Cash ledgers and a General ledger as well as related financial reports.

See also the Maggie Lena Walker Family Papers, 1854-1970, for additional materials catalogued before the current collection was processed:

Series XII: IOSL Records – Boxes 12-15

Subseries A: Legal Records, 1921-1934

The legal records of the organization include 2 different versions of the organization's constitution and correspondence between Maggie Lena Walker and J. Thomas Hewin, who served as the Attorney for the RWGC. Hewin advised the RWGC and served as legal counsel for various legal and compliance issues that the order faced.

See also Subseries D: General Files under [Significant Events and Projects], which contain substantial legal records regarding the activity of the New York District of IOSL; and Series III: Insurance, Subseries H: Death Claims.

Subseries F: Printing Department/Publicity Records – Box 13, Folders 26-28 (Constitution)

Subseries B: Reports and Proceedings, 1901-1974

This subseries primarily contains convention and annual reports from 1910 to 1974. The IOSL met annually until 1917 and biennially after that time. Reports variously include Journals of Proceedings, Souvenir Programs, Juvenile Addresses, Monthly Reports, Annual Reports, Resumes and Resolutions, Syllabi, and financial reports for 1910, 1912, 1917, 1921, 1927, 1929, 1931, 1932, 1933, 1935, 1937, 1939, 1941, 1947, 1949, 1959, 1967 and 1974.

Two additional reports are included:

- A later typescript of the seminal 1901 address outlining Maggie Lena Walker's vision for a bank, newspaper, and store.
- The 1945 Syllabus for a Trustee meeting held in lieu of the regular convention.

Series XII: IOSL Records

Subseries A: RWGC Records

Sub-Subseries 3: Reports – Box 12, Folders 14-15

Subseries F: Printing Department/Publicity Records – Box 14, Folders 6-11; and Box 15, Folder 1

Subseries C: Correspondence, 1906-1962

The correspondence subseries contains communications between Maggie Lena Walker, the RWGC IOSL, subcouncil members, professionals, representatives of similar organizations, and people seeking information about the organization. Included are forms pertaining to the duties of subcouncil recording secretaries, subcouncil degree chiefs, and field recruitment workers, as well as administrative correspondence and some circular letters to the membership. This subseries contains handwritten and typed correspondence as well as carbon copies providing records of responses from Walker and the organization.

With the donation from the Stallings family, an addendum has been added to this subseries which has enriched and enlarged it substantially. The addendum includes correspondence between the RWGC and more than 2000 individuals and corporate bodies between 1916 and 1934. While much of this set of correspondence records the work of Maggie Lena Walker in her role as Right Worthy Grand Matron and Right Worthy Grand Secretary Treasurer, it also contains correspondence that details the administrative activities of high-ranking deputies in the IOSL like John S. Collins. This correspondence is first arranged alphabetically by the name of the individual or corporate body and then organized chronologically.

Most prominent and numerous among these strings of correspondence are Walker's letters with the RWGC leadership and state deputies. Their conversations span several years and give an important state-by-state picture of the Order's recruitment activities, administration, and financial health from 1927-1934.

The subseries is arranged with a large set of correspondence with one member, John Fenner, grouped together, followed by both incoming and outgoing correspondence in reverse date order from 1962 to 1906.

Other significant correspondence is located in topical groups in the General Files subseries, Forms and Death Claims subseries in the Insurance series, and the collections letters in the Educational Loan Fund series.

Series XII: IOSL Records

Subseries A: RWGC Records

Sub-Subseries 2: Correspondence – Box 12, Folders 5-13

Subseries D: General Files, 1905-1979

The General Files subseries contains administrative memos from the RWGC, brief biographies, documentation of interactions with other Richmond organizations, and related items. Subgroupings include important files relating to St. Luke Hall, clippings, convention planning documents, fraternalism, organizational histories, notes on rituals and regalia and an especially interesting file of letters from prominent politicians and clergy members requesting the government to name a Liberty Ship after Maggie L. Walker.

This subseries also contains several miscellaneous handwritten and typed documents related to various RWGC activities, along with correspondence and forms related to the planning and travel for major events like the biennial IOSL conventions. There are also case files regarding memorials and funerals for major members of the RWGC, and one notable public relations file regarding the IOSL in the tabloid press for financial problems. Most items are documents, letters, printed bulletins, and blueprints.

Series XII: IOSL Records

Subseries F: Printing Department/Publicity Records – Box 15, Folder 2

Subseries E: Financial Records, 1906-1965

The Financial Records subseries includes reports, communications with accountants and the IRS, audit reports, and ledgers. There is also substantial documentation that details the rental and use of the St. Luke Hall, along with various forms that detail the real estate and tax records of the IOSL. While ledgers relating to membership are located in the Insurance and Membership series, the financial ledgers include the following:

- General Ledger, 1919-1928
- Cash Disbursements #7, 1920-1928

- Cash Disbursements #8, 1928
- Cash Receipts #13, 1920
- Cash Receipts #26, Dec 1927
- Cash Receipts #28, 1928

Series II: Membership, 1898-1954

The Membership series has several important documents that detail the Order's Subordinate Council recruitment activity for its insured members in addition to early IOSL member activity. It also contains a few documents not directly concerning the insurance business of the IOSL.

In the early days of the IOSL, members were distinguished either as "financial members" (those who were current with payments to the insurance program) or simply as members. This small series contains a few documents relating to general membership. "Financial members" records and later membership records are located in the Insurance series. After the earliest years of the 20th century, all members appear to have participated in the insurance program, and the distinction was rarely ever used.

The series is organized into two subseries: Subseries A: Membership Recruitment; Subseries B: Subordinate Councils. Within the Subordinate Councils subseries is an important register (ledger) entitled "Record of Organization of Councils." This Register forms the basis for Appendix D, which is a manipulated partial transcription of the ledger.

This subseries contains only two items both related to membership campaigns held in 1945.

Subseries B: Subordinate Councils, 1898-1954

This subseries contains administrative records including notes and reports from various state subcouncils. Appendix D is extracted from Record of Organization of Councils 1910 – 1954 located within this subseries.

Series III: Insurance, 1898-1974

The Insurance series contains records of the insurance business of the IOSL.

Organized into eight subseries:

- Subseries A: Deputy Commissions and Assignments
- Subseries B: Forms

- Subseries C: Rates and Plans
- Subseries D: State Requirements
- Subseries E: Ledgers [Registers]
- Subseries F: Membership Lists
- Subseries G: Minutes
- Subseries H: Death Claims.

Subseries A: Deputy Commissions and Assignments, 1909-1967

Deputies and other field staff members played an important role in organizing new councils and maintaining relationships with existing groups, ensuring the ongoing growth of the IOSL. These 20 files describe the daily work of deputies, their assignments, travel schedules, and compensation.

This series is arranged in reverse chronological order.

Subseries B: Forms, 1901-1941

The Forms subseries documents the insurance business of the IOSL. This subseries includes both blank forms and forms containing data relating to councils as well as to individuals. Some early benefit certificates, endowment certificates and council charters are large, colorful, and quite grand, while other routine forms and requests were created for temporary purposes. Other types of forms can be found across the “Correspondence” subseries under Administration.

This subseries is arranged as follows:

1. An important group of 1917 monthly assessment forms representing nearly every council in the IOSL. They are arranged in the order the forms were received during August 1917. Some include orders for regalia.
2. Blank forms arranged alphabetically. Some are oversized.
3. Forms containing data including benefit and endowment certificates, council charters, investigation forms for applicants, requests to transfer between councils, and a set of mechanically printed forms circa 1940.
4. An important group of “Notice of Death” forms and their associated correspondence dating from circa 1931 – 1937. These documents were keystones to the operation and function of the Right Worthy Grand Council’s process of paying out death claims to its subcouncil members. These documents contain data about subcouncils across the United States, the names of deceased who died as benefited members, and the beneficiaries of their policies. When possible, they are arranged by council number and the last name of the deceased individual. For information about the names of individual subcouncils and their respective locations, see Appendix D: List of Subcouncils.

5. A large and important set of IOSL insurance policy cards from circa 1930 – 1943 that contain information about individual members of subcouncils across the United States. These are arranged by Council Number.

6. A large group of fragile and salvaged semi-annual tax report sheets sent from individual subcouncils to the RWGC. These are dated between 1927 and 1929 and are arranged chronologically.

Subseries E: Policy Department Records

Sub-Subseries 1: Legal Reserve Division – Box 13, Folders 18-20

Subseries D: State Requirements, 1906-1954

The IOSL conducted business in several states over time. This subset contains communications with state insurance officials requesting data or advising of legislative changes affecting insurance providers in addition to ensuring that the IOSL met certain state and federal compliance measures. These documents and certificates span from the 1900s to the 1950s and include Alabama, the District of Columbia, Illinois, Maryland, Missouri, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Virginia, and West Virginia.

[Subseries E: Ledgers \[Registers\], 1897-1977](#)

The insurance program of the IOSL began in the 19th century with locally managed payments to members who were sick or to their families upon the member's death. During the 1890s much effort was expended to create a more centralized endowment system with death documentation and designation of specific beneficiaries.

A three-tiered system was implemented in the early 20th century with level A providing a $100 death benefit, level B providing a $300 death benefit, and level C providing a $500 death benefit. By 1925, 93% of members were insured at level A, which was no longer determined to be able to support all future claims. A modern Legal Reserve policy was added in 1928.

The insurance registers include:

- Members by council, 1897-1911
- Membership roll of the endowment, 1904-1911
- Past Chiefs' councils, 1905-1920 and Past Chiefs' certificate registers, 1920-1967
- Class A certificate register, 1911-1919
- Past Chief register, 1916-1919 and Class A certificate register, 1916-1919
- Class A certificate register, 1919-1923
- Juvenile certificate register, 1920-1935
- Class B and C certificate register, 1922-1927
- Class A certificate register, 1923-1926
- Class A certificate register, 1926-1929 and Legal Reserve certificate register, 1926-1929
- Juvenile certificate register, 1935-1947
- Legal Reserve division deaths, 1928-1954
- Death claim register, 1926-1977
- A blank register

The ledgers/registers are arranged chronologically. Note that the IOSL sometimes used a single ledger for two different divisions at the same time.

Subseries F: Membership Lists, 1925

This subseries contains one document: [List of Selected Councils with Members' Ages], c.1925

Subseries G: Minutes, 1898-1942

This series currently contains three register books of early minutes. They include:

Records of Proceedings of Managers of Endowment, 1898-1912.

[Meetings of the Executive Committee of the Right Worthy Grand Council], 1912 – 1927

[Meetings of the Executive Committee of the Right Worthy Grand Council], 1927 -1942

Each of these ledgers provide a comprehensive overview and administrative history of the Right Worthy Grand Council's activities spanning a forty-four year period.

Subseries H: Death Claims, 1931-1957

The death claims subseries contains documentation of embezzlements and fraudulent claims identified in the 1930s and again between 1956 and 1957. Some supporting documents date to the early 1950s. The documents are organized by case, although many of the cases overlap.

The folders are arranged by name, and the documents contained in the folders are in reverse chronological order. Many of the cases overlap and involve multiple individuals, several of whom have family ties or other connections.

Series IV: Educational Loan Fund, 1932-1964

In the 1933 IOSL Constitution, Law 63 addresses the Educational Loan Fund:

"An Educational Loan Fund is established whereby the young members of the organization can complete a practical education. The fund to be under the direction and care of a commission, consisting of three persons, appointed by the Trustee Board. It will be required that young men and women must be members of the Order three years and more, and recommended by their local Circles or Councils, and by their former teacher. The Educational Loan Fund shall not grant a loan for a term longer than five years, and the amount loaned be from $50.00 to $300.00. It would be required that the applicant sign a Note to repay the obligation, in order that some other young man or woman may receive assistance in the future."

The Educational Loan Fund series contains a few records of the fund, collections correspondence addressing late loan payments, and a selection of administrative memos and circular letters that concern the fundraising and implementation of the program.

Series V: Juvenile Department, 1909-1937

The Juvenile Department offered adult members a way to buy small insurance policies for their children while also providing regular programs for members of juvenile "Circles" emphasizing thrift, hygiene, and service to community under the guidance of an adult IOSL matron. Juvenile members were encouraged to transition to adult membership at a desirable rate when they turned sixteen, thus joining an adult subordinate council and providing a "feeder" program for the insurance business.

The 1933 IOSL Constitution describes the creation of the Juvenile Fund:

"Law 62 - Juvenile Fund, How Created. The Juvenile Fund shall consist of the contributions made to this fund from monthly assessments levied upon and collected from the members of the Juvenile Department, under the terms of the benefit certificate held by them; of moneys received from Juvenile Circles for charters and supplies and other similar items; initiation, certificate, and other fees; biennial Juvenile fees; and all other moneys pertaining to the Juvenile Department. The Board of Trustees may transfer from the Juvenile Fund to the Mortuary Fund, Expense Fund, as may be deemed advisable or necessary, and may transfer from the Expense Fund to the Juvenile Fund such amounts as may be required at any time."

This series contains a very small number of records relating to this important endeavor, along with a small selection of administrative memos and circular letters from the RWGC concerning specific juvenile circles.

Subseries F: Printing Department/Publicity Records – Box 15, Folders 3-4

Series VII: Related Enterprises, 1901-1934

This series is organized into three subseries: Subseries A: St. Luke Emporium; Subseries B: St. Luke Penny Savings Bank and Consolidated Bank and Trust Company; Subseries C: St. Luke Stock Association.

Subseries A: St. Luke Emporium, 1901-1908

The St. Luke Emporium was a department store managed and run by African American women from 1905-1911. It struggled to turn a profit, faced white opposition, and finally after new state regulations in 1910, the Emporium could not remain solvent independent from “subsidization” by the IOSL’s insurance treasury. The Emporium stockholders voted to close the store in November, 1911 and for its Executive Committee to assume its debts.

This subseries currently contains two documents, a copy of the record chartering the store and several stock certificates.

Subseries B: St. Luke Penny Savings Bank, and Consolidated Bank and Trust, 1911-1934

The St. Luke Penny Savings Bank was proposed and organized by Maggie Lena Walker when she became Right Worthy Grand Secretary of the organization. It was chartered in 1903 with the RWG Council as Board of Directors, each member of which was required to own $100 of stock. Walker was soon recognized as the first and only female bank president in Richmond and was the nation’s first African American female bank president. On opening day at their location on the first floor of St. Luke Hall, the bank garnered over $9,000 from 280 new patrons. In 1905, the bank moved to shared quarters in the Order’s new department store, The St. Luke Emporium. In 1906 the bank’s charter was rewritten to permit branch banks in Virginia and other states, although none materialized in Walker’s lifetime.

In 1910, a bank operated by another fraternal organization, The True Reformers, was inspected and failed. Too much capital was tied up in risky and murky loans and deals, and the bank could not honor thousands of dollars of its organization’s death claims, forcing the bank into receivership. A grassroots campaign for a bailout was not successful, causing significant financial hardship throughout the African American community in Richmond.

While the St. Luke Penny Savings Bank successfully passed its inspection and moved to a larger new building in 1911, the insurance commissioners required banks to be severed from their associated fraternal organizations. Despite this, Maggie Lena Walker continued as bank president. When other African American banks in Richmond failed due to undercapitalization and poor management, this bank prospered due to sound management and conservative business practices.

In 1929 the St. Luke bank merged with Second Street Savings Bank to form Consolidated Bank and Trust and merged again with Commercial Bank and Trust in December of 1930.

This subseries contains a few circular letters to stockholders, financial records, and materials documenting the evolution from the St. Luke Penny Savings Bank to the St. Luke Bank & Trust Co. to its last iteration as the Consolidated Bank and Trust Company.

Subseries C: St. Luke Stock Association, 1898-1910

In 1897 Maggie Lena Walker and other interested members of 25 local councils formed a stock company, The St. Luke Association valued at $50,000, to raise funds to purchase land for a headquarters building for the Order. The group purchased land at 900 St. James Street for $4,000, raising funds through entertainments and bazaars. After making the final payment in 1902, they planned a 3-story building and began construction in 1903. With a 500-person hall and a few smaller meeting rooms, the Association collected rents from local councils and other neighborhood groups as well as the RWGC for the use of the space. In 1910 the Insurance Commission strongly advised the RWGC to purchase the property outright, requiring them to buy up all shares of stock. The funds were distributed to 19 local councils of the Order and the RWGC acquired the property for approximately $19,000.

Series VIII: Collected Materials, 1920-1966

This series contains a wide range of documents kept by the IOSL including publications of other organizations, descriptions of other fraternal organizations, miscellaneous periodicals, and solicitations for advertising, calendars, and pamphlets.

This series is arranged in chronological order.

Series IX: Images, 1890-1970

The Images series includes some images found with the IOSL papers.

Appendix C: RWGC IOSL Timeline

1867

- The IOSL was founded in Baltimore by Mary Prout to provide its African American members with proper burials and assist with illness and disability.

1869

- Virginia IOSL broke away from the parent organization forming the “Independent Order of the Sons and Daughters of St. Luke” (its name until 1914).
- William M.T. Forrester became Secretary of St Luke in Virginia.

1879

- Richard Forrester served as RWG Chief; William MT Forrester served as RWG Secretary.
- 48 subordinate councils received charters.
- A committee was appointed to revise the IOSL constitution.

1880

- The 13th IOSL convention noted 76 councils and 2130 members.
- During most of the 1880s, the IOSL was small and struggled with relatively few members.

1881

- The IOSL convention adopted a controversial endowment fund in which members received a certificate of endowment and were assessed 5 cents at the death of a member.
- There were 77 councils and 2505 members.
- Maggie Lena Mitchell (later Walker) joined the IOSL at age 16.

1883

- MLW served as an IOSL convention delegate.

1885

- IOSL founder Mary Prout died.
- The convention rejected a junior order while adding the office of traveling deputy.
- Few death assessments were ever paid by members.
- There were 92 councils and 2328 members.

1886

- MLW served as RWG Outside Sentinel.

1887

- MLW served as RWG Inside Sentinel.
- The 20th annual convention reconsidered an endowment feature and revision of the IOSL general laws.
- William Forrester published a new IOSL ritual.

1888

- MLW served as RW Grand Messenger.

1889

- MLW was appointed RWG Vice Chief and headed an IOSL council.
- At the 22nd annual convention, membership increased, and a new endowment plan replaced an 1887 plan.
- There were 57 councils and 1000 members.

1890

- MLW became RWG Chief (administrative post.)

1891

- IOSL secretary William Forrester promoted an endowment plan to shift death benefit administration from the local councils to the RWGC.
- From 1891-1898 MLW served as an organizing deputy/lecturer (or insurance company collection agent), the most lucrative paid job.

1895

- MLW designed a juvenile branch of the IOSL offering $30 policies and served the group as grand deputy matron, enlisting female friends to launch and lead the program and write its rituals and the 28th convention approved the juvenile circles.
- There were 90 councils and 2875 members.

1896

- The adult Endowment Department developed centralized insurance plans.
- The juvenile program had over 1000 members.

1897

- MLW was elected as grand deputy matron of the Juvenile Department and secretary of the Endowment Department.
- Although some members did not want insurance, the Endowment Department officially began to manage the insurance business. The charter was amended to pay weekly sickness and disability benefits and pay death benefits to a designated beneficiary.
- The St. Luke Association, an external joint stock company consisting of 25 local councils, formed to buy land for a headquarters building. They received their charter the following year.

- The IOSL had 57 subordinate councils, 1080 members, $31.61 in assets and $400 debts.
- Forrester resigned as Secretary of the RWGC as the organization was about to fail. Upon his resignation, MLW was elected Right Worthy Grand Secretary for $100/year, her initial salary 1/3 of that paid Forrester.
- Benefitted councils dropped to 57 with 1080 financial members as well as 1600 children in 25 juvenile circles.

1900

- The Endowment became compulsory and was noted as running smoothly with a $50 adult death benefit.
- There were 87 councils with 3830 members and $17,937 in cash and investments. A field department was added as well as a juvenile executive board.

1901

- At the 34th convention, an increase in endowment taxation for each member is noted. Maggie Lena Walker delivers a powerful speech in which she outlines her vision for the Order of St. Luke including a newspaper, a bank, and a department store to serve the financial and social interests of the Black community.

1902

- At the 35th convention, the IOSL was prospering and expanding throughout the mid-South. The juvenile program and endowment feature were both running smoothly. A printing office was established, and the St. Luke Herald began publication as a “mouthpiece” for the IOSL.
- The Stock Association made a final payment on their property and had plans drawn up for St. Luke Hall, a three-story Edwardian-style building with a yellow pressed-brick façade.

1903

- MLW chartered the St. Luke Penny Savings Bank located in St. Luke Hall with initial deposits of $8000 and serves as its president until 1929. She thus became the first Black woman bank president in the country. The bank provided savings accounts and mortgages to Black families to help them purchase homes.
- At the 36th convention, members heard that the Endowment, Juvenile program, St. Luke Herald, and the printing department were thriving.

1904

- The RWGC started a regalia and supply department to assist in local subordinate council rituals in which members could progress through a series of degrees.

1905

- An emergency fund was formed to protect the endowment or “insure the insurance.”
- The Bank moved into a building with the IOSL’s department store, the St. Luke Emporium, organized and chartered by 22 IOSL women.

1906

- The IOSL operated in 15 eastern states from Massachusetts to Tennessee.
- The St. Luke bank charter was amended to allow opening branches within or outside Virginia, although none materialized.

1907

- The Emporium experienced multiple external pressures from the white retail community that encouraged northern wholesalers to boycott it. It made no profit in 1907 yet was deemed more threatening to the white business community than an insurance business.

- State regulators kept a close watch on fraternal insurance programs.

- At a surprise inspection by the insurance commissioner, the IOSL received high marks.
- Walker's title expanded to Right Worthy Grand Secretary-Treasurer.

1910

- The St. Luke Bank also received high marks at its inspection while other small banks were closing. At the regulators' request, the bank separated from the IOSL and began plans to move to its own building.
- Its main clientele continued to be IOSL members.

1911

- After the True Reformers Bank in Richmond failed due to poor management and undercapitalization, all Black businesses came under scrutiny. The IOSL responded by revising its general laws and implementing a new bookkeeping system including monthly audits and reconciliation guided by state actuarial requirements.
- The Emporium stockholders voted to close the store and for its Executive Committee to assume its debts.
- The Bank opens in its new, stand-alone location at 1st and Marshall Streets.

1912

- The 45th convention noted growth in every department with no irregularities. The Juvenile Department held its own regular biennial conventions.
- The Bank sold the St. Luke Emporium's property.
- With insurance members in 15 states, cash assets had to be posted as bonds in each state and each state's reporting completed, increasing administrative duties.

1913

- The 46th convention noted growth (92 new charters and 9101 new members) as well as operational challenges.

1914

- The name officially changed from RWGC of Sons and Daughters of the IOSL to RWGC IOSL.

1915

- The IOSL revised its constitution to comply with insurance regulations in all states where the IOSL did business.

1917

- The 50th convention approved a new building (although a renovation was completed) and a shift to holding biennial conventions.

1919

- MLW learned of an internal cross-checking system used by another association that required one clerk to serve as voucher clerk and a second to serve as auditor, and the IOSL adopted the system. Incoming and outgoing reports and records were coordinated among all departments.
- The IOSL held its first biennial conference.
- A new juvenile plan was implemented for children up to age 15, after which they could transfer to the adult plan. The RWGC helped matrons of juvenile circles with programming ideas and clarified juvenile circle finances.

1920

- MLW had to disentangle the national IOSL based in Virginia from the NY IOSL, which was plagued with management problems and insufficiently secured mortgages.

1921

- MLW planned and began to raise funds for an IOSL Educational Loan Fund (ELF).
- The revised constitution addressed the field staff structure: "In the IOSL there may be state deputies, district and associate deputies, organizing deputies and special deputies, all of whom shall be commissioned and under the direct control, management and service of the Board of Trustees, save District and Associate Deputies who shall be elected by the various IOSL Councils in their several districts but under the supervision and guidance of the Board of Trustees."
- States in order of numbers of members: VA, NY, PA, DC, MD, NC, NJ, WV, DE, CT, RI, IL, OH, SC, FL, TN, IN, MA.

- The field staff had 39 deputies and the home office had 55 clerks, most of whom were women.
- The St. Luke Herald reached 6000 subscribers and the IOSL touts over 100,000 members.

1926

- To support the ELF, MLW planned to raise $10,000 invested in 6% securities to allow the IOSL to offer revolving loans of $50-400 secured by a note for higher education.

1927

- The 60th anniversary convention featured an elaborate pageant celebrating the history of the IOSL.
- While the IOSL created and the convention adopted the ELF program, many subcouncils resented funds being used in this way. The bonds did not pay interest for many years. Nevertheless, MLW vigorously sought funding for the program from councils and circles.
- Easter Thanksgiving services were established to support ELF with half the collection for the local church and half to support the ELF.
- Children in the old Juvenile program transferred to Class A, B or C after 1927, resulting in many suspensions.
- The new Legal Reserve program certificates could not be assigned to another person. Rate tables were published, and a medical exam required. By law, the LR Expense Fund and its mortuary fund (for claims and reserves) had to be kept separate.

1928

- The IOSL rented card punch tabulating equipment from the Powers Company and restructured the existing accounting system.
- The juvenile program had not been contributing at an adequate level, so the Department of Insurance approved a transfer from juvenile funds to the Expense Fund as a reimbursement.
- The first Legal Reserve certificates were issued. Five policies were offered from $100 to $500 at age rates based on mortality tables. All payments went directly to the RWGC, not through the local council.

1929

- The St. Luke Bank began its merger process with two other Black Richmond banks to form Consolidated Bank and Trust with MLW as Board chair.
- No new Class A memberships were issued, given that the class was underfunded, to the chagrin of several subordinate councils.
- Members understating their ages for better rates hampered the Legal Reserve fund.
- ELF remained a separate fund when other funds were simplified. It grew very slowly.
- The juvenile program offered $100 death certificates, had 871 matrons with circles and 61,596 members. Circles met monthly for dues, lessons, reports, and committee work including membership, flowers, banking, program, and reception.

1931

- The Depression forced large expense cuts, including salaries. The IOSL had to borrow to meet its payroll. The weekly St. Luke Herald became a monthly St. Luke Fraternal Bulletin.
- After reorganization, administrative departments included Audit, Policy, Field, Printing, Medical, Assessment, Mortuary, Juvenile and Legal Reserve.
- MLW had raised 8,000 of the $10,000 she needed to launch ELF.

1933

- Due to a high death rate in class A, its members were assessed a 10-cent increase by the convention.
- Legal Reserve was doing well but could not cover deficits in Class A policies.

1935

- Maggie Walker died on December 15, 1934.
- ELF was not immediately implemented due to uncertainty regarding investments.
- The IOSL operated in 24 states with 50,000 members at this time.

1937

- Class A, B and C rates were adjusted as the ABC Department was underfunded. The new federal Social Security system threatened to cost employers 1% of employee salaries per month and covered some of the same expenses for which people sought fraternal insurance.

1938

- The ELF program was promoted, and loans were made and repaid.

1939-1957

- Maggie Walker's daughter in law, Hattie N.F. Walker took over as acting Right Worthy Grand Chief in 1937 and served until her retirement in 1957.
- The IOSL never again grew as it had under the leadership of MLW.

1958

- The IOSL stopped printing the St. Luke Fraternal Bulletin and begin printing the smaller St. Luke Monitor.

1959

- ELF was changed to a merit based IOSL scholarship fund. ELF funds reverted to the Expense Fund.
- 1967
- The IOSL celebrated its centennial anniversary.

1980

- In the early 1980s the IOSL moved from St Luke Hall to an office in the Southern Aid building on 212 E. Clay St.

1988

- In the late 1980s the IOSL ceased to function and went into receivership.

Early 2000s

- [Exact date unknown] State Corporation Commission Bureau of Insurance receivers donate any remaining IOSL financial assets to Virginia Union University to endow a Maggie L. Walker Scholarship program.

Appendix D: List of Subcouncils in the Independent Order of St. Luke

This appendix is extracted from Series II: Membership – B: Subordinate Councils – Record of Organization of Councils 1910 – 1954. It is a manipulated transcription that organizes and simplifies the data about individual subcouncils to display salient data about the presence of IOSL subcouncils across the United States. The subcouncils of the Independent Order of St. Luke were the direct result of its large membership, sustained financial success, and recruitment efforts. The Order recorded more than 1,797 subcouncils and 100,000 members, with subcouncil presence in 27 states. Across the collection, there are repeated references to three specific data points: specific council names, their unique identification numbers, and their geographic locations. This appendix is meant to provide a reference guide, organized by council number and alphabetically by state, that gives context for each subcouncil and its location.

Notes on Appendix:

- Some Unique Council Identifier Numbers are repeated in the ledger are a result of clerical errors when subcouncils were entered into the register, while others reflect council reinstatements that designate an inactive council becoming active again after a lapse in membership, a period of inactivity, or a change in name or location. The result is that one Unique Council Identifier Number could be connected to multiple councils with different names and geographic locations. These are noted in the transcription with a bracketed [*].
- Some council numbers are missing or have no council attributed a Unique Council Identifier Number. Council numbers with no council name attributed have been removed from this appendix but can be found in the original transcription.
- Some councils are attributed to state counties rather than an individual town or city. Counties use the abbreviation “Co. or C. H.” in the appendix.
- This transcription does not contain information on Past Chief’s Councils, which were a type of subcouncil that emerged out of degree chiefs – ritual leaders of IOSL subcouncils – forming their own subcouncils after relinquishing control of the subcouncils they used to organize and govern. However, more information on Past Chief’s Councils can be found in the registers.
 - See Series III: Insurance – Subseries E: Ledgers (Registers) –
 - Past Chiefs' councils, 1905-1920 and Past Chiefs' certificate registers, 1920-1967
 - Past Chief register, 1916-1919
- While this transcription reflects the Right Worthy Grand Council’s effort to keep a comprehensive record of council organizations between the order’s establishment in 1881 and the end of the register’s record in 1954, this appendix does not contain information on the Juvenile Circles – the companion suborganization that constituted membership in the Juvenile Division of the Independent Order of St. Luke. However, there are ledgers that contain information about these circles and their membership.
 - See Series III: Insurance – Subseries E: Ledgers (Registers) –
 - Juvenile Certificate Register, 1920-1935
 - Juvenile Certificate Register, 1935-1947.
- Many of the listed locations and dates that are repeated consecutively in the written ledger use the "" symbols to represent a repeated entry. For the sake of accuracy, this transcription instead has the full entry for location instead of the repeat symbol.
- On request, a duplicate spreadsheet of this appendix with manipulable data can be provided to researchers.

Subcouncil List of Juvenile Circles in the Independent Order of St. Luke

This appendix is extracted from Series III: Insurance – Subseries B: Forms – Juvenile Circle Payment Cards. It is a manipulated transcription that organizes and simplifies the data about individual circles to display salient data about the presence of IOSL juvenile circles across the United States. The Juvenile Circles were a part of the Juvenile Department of the Independent Order of St. Luke and acted as a companion suborganization for younger members.

Across the collection, there are repeated references to three specific data points: specific council names, their unique identification numbers, and their geographic locations.

This appendix only contains information about the circles represented on the Juvenile Circle Payment Cards. For information about more of the juvenile circles please refer to the two ledgers listed below:

- See Series III: Insurance – Subseries E: Ledgers (Registers) –
 - Juvenile Certificate Register, 1920-1935
 - Juvenile Certificate Register, 1935-1947

This appendix is meant to provide a reference guide, organized by council number and alphabetically by state, that gives context for each circle and their location.
