

Visitor of the Month

May 2013 Adair

Weir Farm National Historic Site celebrates Adair, one of the park's most long-standing and dedicated visitors, as May's Visitor of the Month. Adair has been coming to the park since 1995, visiting the day after she and her husband bought their nearby home in Wilton, CT. They had no idea that this national treasure rested next door, and as an outdoorsy person with a background in graphic arts and photography, the park was a serendipitous find for Adair.

Adair has been very involved in park happenings over the years. She was a board member of the Weir Farm Trust (now the Weir Farm Art Center) early on, and now supports the park as a volunteer for the Artist-in-Residence program.

May Visitor of the Month, Adair, at Weir Farm National Historic Site

Adair is also a member of the Weir Preserve Stewardship Committee, which preserves and protects the adjoining Weir Preserve- a stunning 110 acres which park visitors also enjoy. Way to go, Adair!

Throughout the years, Adair has truly made the most out of having a national park right in her own backyard. She visits frequently, walking the trails, absorbing the peace and beauty, and enjoying the graceful landscape. One of her favorite activities is doing yoga at Weir Pond. She finds when no one is around, nestled in the woods, the pond is the perfect meditation spot. She also walks to the park if she is feeling stressed from her work solving problems, managing projects, and researching solutions through the concierge business she runs from her home. "I always feel an ease after such a walk," says Adair, "There is something about the light in this end piece of Wilton that is special. Perhaps that's why J. Alden Weir picked this spot to live and paint."

Adair sharing her love of Weir Farm National Historic Site with some visitors

Thanks, Adair, for your years of dedication to Weir Farm National Historic Site! We are so glad to have your continued support, and that you visit and enjoy your local national park as often as you do. See you on the trails! To learn more about the Visitor of the Month visit www.nps.gov/wefa or use the QR code to the right.

