HISTORY

The Yellowstone National Park Facilities and Maintenance Division keeps the park's infrastructure in operating condition. The staff oversees the daily operation of campgrounds, buildings, restroom facilities, grounds, roads, trails, transportation systems, and utilities. The Chief of Maintenance is the head of the division and is assisted by two Deputy Chiefs, one of whom oversees the civil engineering shops and trail maintenance operations, and the other who oversees the operations that keep the roads, facilities, and grounds in working order. Although some projects, or portions of projects are awarded to private contractors, the Facilities and Maintenance Division is responsible for the approval of plans, overall supervision, and completion of projects within the park.

1918 – National Park Service director, Stephen Mather, created the Landscape Engineering Office and the General Engineering Division. The responsibility for the road engineering work in Yellowstone was transferred from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to the General Engineering Division. When the National Park Service took over there were 278.8 miles of primary roads and 24.75 miles of secondary roads in Yellowstone National Park.

1921 – Major construction projects included the widening of roads over Dunraven Pass and at the Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone, construction of stone parapets between the Upper Falls and the Canyon Bridge, a new steel and concrete bridge over the Gibbon River near Norris, the reconstruction of the Lamar River Bridge, and the construction of a new foot bridge over the Firehole near Castle Geyser.

1924 – A bill passed through Congress appropriating funds to the National Park Service for constructing, repairing, and surfacing roads throughout all the national parks. Roadside cleanup began in Yellowstone National Park after a visit by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who offered to give suggestions and assist in financing the project. This involved removing dead and fallen trees, stumps, and excessive telephone and power poles as well as moving the permanent poles further from the road so as to preserve the landscape and allow visitors a less obstructed view of the park. A permanent West Entrance Ranger and Checking Station was built along with a temporary one built at the East Entrance until it could be replaced with a permanent building in 1929.

1926 – The National Park Service and the Bureau of Public Roads signed an agreement relating to the survey, construction, and improvement of roads and trails in the national parks by providing landscape protection with road construction. The National Park Service architect assisted in the redesign of the Old Faithful Lodge.

1927 – Yellowstone National Park Maintenance crews switched from water sprinkling to oiling the roads to keep the dust down as visitors drove through the park. Road work projects included West Thumb via Lake to Canyon and Canyon Junction to Tower Junction. A barn and corral were built at the Lamar Buffalo Ranch.

1928 – Visitors complained about oil getting on their vehicles, so road crews began to put sand and gravel down on top of the freshly oiled surface. Road work projects included Norris Junction to Madison Junction, East Entrance to Sylvan pass, and sections of the West Gallatin Road. The road system in Yellowstone National Park covered 305 miles with Yellowstone road crews also maintaining 32 miles of approach roads through Teton National Forest and 28 miles of approach roads through Shoshone National Forest.

1929 – The Old Faithful Trailside Museum of Thermal Activity, the Madison Trailside Museum, and the Norris Geyser Basin Trailside Museum were built by architect Herbert Maier in the style known as National Park Service Rustic. A bunkhouse was built at the Lamar Buffalo Ranch.

1931 – The Lake Fish Hatchery was built by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the Fishing Bridge Trailside Museum was built by architect Herbert Maier, both in the National Park Service Rustic style. Road crews had to be pulled off projects to assist in fighting forest fires in the park. Road projects included East Entrance, Canyon to Tower, Obsidian to Firehole, Tower Falls to Blacktail Deer Creek, Mammoth to Obsidian, Fishing Bridge to Lake Junction, and Mt. Washburn loop roads.

1932-1933 – Road projects included Tower Falls Bridge, Seven Mile Bridge, six bridges on the Red Lodge to Cooke City Road, Pilgrim Creek Bridge, and Moran to South Boundary Road. The North Entrance Checking Station was built.

1933 – Local road contractors used funds from the Emergency Conservation Work Program to employ men outside the park to work on the Tower Falls to Mammoth Hot Springs Road and the Golden Gate to Obsidian Cliff Road. The Civilian Conservation Corps set up four camps in Yellowstone National Park. The CCC projects included telephone line repair, bank erosion control, roadside cleanup, campground cleanup, truck trail construction, fire protection, trail construction, removal of old fences and buildings, building new fences, insect control, and reforestation.

1934 – Public Works Program funds were used to improve the Grand Loop Road and sections of the entrance roads. Two additional CCC camps were set up in the park. Yellowstone maintenance crews now maintained 328 miles of road inside the park 54 miles of road outside the Park.

1935 – The Red Lodge to Cooke City Road opened and the Northeast Entrance Checking Station was built.

1937 – The number of CCC camps was reduced to four with most of their road-related projects consisting of road obliteration. Meetings were held to develop policy on the use of signs in the park. The North Entrance Checking Station at the Roosevelt Arch was destroyed by a fire and a temporary station was built several hundred feet from the burned remains.

1938 – A residence building was moved from Soda Butte to the Lamar Buffalo Ranch.

1939 – The Gardner River Bridge was completed. Congress appropriated money for Yellowstone National Park to keep the Gardiner to Cooke City Road open throughout the winter. The 45 miles-per-hour speed limit was instituted throughout the park.

1942-1943 – Guardrails along dangerous curves went from being poor quality lodge pole pine to safer metal rails painted brown to appear to be wooden rails. All CCC camps were discontinued in the park with the Mammoth and Cascade Creek CCC camp buildings being moved to the Heart Mountain Relocation Project near Cody, Wyoming.

1945-1955 – Congress was not appropriating funding for the National Park Service to start any new major construction projects. Yellowstone National Park could only do small emergency projects such as replace badly deteriorated guardrails and patch damaged roads.

1956 – The National Park Service enacted Mission 66, a 10-year plan to upgrade and improve visitor facilities and roads within all of the national parks. The Yellowstone Park Company built Canyon Village as part of the Mission 66 initiative. Other major projects under the Mission 66 initiative included replacing 14 old bridges, widening roads, adding visitor parking, and constructing pull-out areas for visitors to allow them to enjoy the scenery.

1961 – Bridge Bay Marina was built by the National Park Service even though it was originally supposed to be built by the Yellowstone Park Company under the Mission 66 initiative.

1963 – The Chittenden Memorial Bridge replaced the old Chittenden Bridge that spanned the Yellowstone River.

1969 – The Old Faithful Interchange was built as part of the modern "Anywhere USA" construction design philosophy which greatly deviated from the Park Service's customary philosophy of roads blending with the environment.

1971 - The Old Faithful Trailside Museum of Thermal Activity was demolished to make way for a new Mission 66 inspired visitor center.

1979 – The National Park Service purchased all of the Yellowstone Park Company's physical assets within the park. TWA Services was awarded the concessions contract, leasing the facilities from the Park Service and responsible for the upkeep of the buildings. TWA Services began construction of the Grant Village facilities.

1984 – Extensive renovations began on the Lake Hotel.

1988 – The major fires that burned through the park damaged many buildings in Grant Village. The original buildings were in the Mission 66 modern style but when the buildings were rebuilt they were designed in the more traditional National Park Service Rustic style.

2003 – Construction on the Heritage and Research Center started.

2004 – A complete renovation of the Old Faithful Inn was started.

2006 – The Mission 66 style Old Faithful Visitor Center was demolished and construction began on the new Old Faithful Visitor Education Center. The Canyon Village Visitor Center opened.

2011 – Yellowstone National Park maintenance crews maintained 310 miles of paved roads and 156 miles of unpaved roads, 15 miles of boardwalks, 1,000 miles of backcountry trails, 301 backcountry campsites, 52 picnic areas, 7 campgrounds, 9 visitor centers and museums, 1 marina, 9 hotels and lodges, and over 1,500 buildings throughout the park used by the National Park Service and the Yellowstone concessioners. Initiation of multiple environmental assessments and planning projects, including the Comprehensive Plans for the Lake and Old Faithful areas, and development of employee housing plans.

2012 - Key projects included the start of the Gardiner Gateway and Old Faithful Dormitory construction. Environmental assessments for the Old Faithful Pub and Bechler Area continued. Phase 1 of Mammoth Hotel Seismic Stabilization began, and Visitor Use Management planning advanced.

2013 - Construction projects included the Canyon Area Lodging Redevelopment and Fishing Bridge RV Park Renovation. The Bechler Area Environmental Assessment was completed. Housing planning progressed with Mammoth Cultural Landscape discussions, and sustainability focused on the Gardiner-Park District Arsenic litigation.

2014-2015 - Infrastructure projects like Canyon Rim Rehabilitation and sewer upgrades at Gardiner and Norris Junction took place. The Transportation Improvement Plan focused on road and bridge upgrades, while historic renovations, including Mammoth Hotel, were underway.

2016-2017 - Mammoth Hotel renovation continued, along with water and wastewater improvements, including upgrades to the Fishing Bridge Water System. Park-wide sustainability efforts, including Lamar Buffalo Ranch and energy audits, progressed.

2018-2019 - Final phases of major projects like Mammoth Hotel Rehabilitation and Canyon Village Parking Lot Handrail Installation were completed. The Water Strategies Planning Report and wastewater improvements were finalized, with park-wide infrastructure upgrades.

DESCRIPTION This collection contains material related to the construction and maintenance functions of Yellowstone National Park from 1918 to the present.

Through the years the park has worked cooperatively with the Bureau of Public Roads, the Civilian Conservation Corps, the Emergency Conservation Work Program, the Public Works Program, private contractors, park concessioners, and many other state and federal agencies in completing a wide variety of projects within Yellowstone National Park. The material within this collection documents the daily, monthly, and yearly progress made on these projects and shows what portions of the projects were completed by which group. This collection also documents the changes in the style of construction and materials used in construction from the post-Army era, through World War II and the Mission 66 eras, and into the 21st century.

Subjects include the construction and upkeep of the road system throughout the park, the renovation of the Lake Hotel and Old Faithful Inn, the construction of Grant Village, the projects completed by the Civilian Conservation Corps, the installation of the hydro-electric plant in Mammoth Hot Springs, the preservation or demolition of military era buildings, and the Mission 66 construction projects. Other broader topics include modernizing utilities throughout the park, water and wastewater treatment facilities, six-year plans for future projects, and the collaboration between the National Park Service and the Bureau of Public Roads or various contractors in the completion of projects.
